{{~~~Personality and Backstory~~~}}

» Backstory: The younger sister to Valentina Perez (née Jiminez), Lola is the daughter of two Mexican Immigrants. Her mother, Maria, is from Guadalajara, Jalisco and her father, Santiago, is from Tequila, Jalisco. Despite the short distance between their hometowns, the two actually met during her father's time as a U.S. Navy Captain and her mother's time in the U.S. Navy Nurse Corps; both later became Gulf War Veterans. Lola considered joining the Navy, but wanted to fight against the expectations for her that her sister had helped contribute to by becoming a Rear Admiral Lower Half of the Navy. Still, she grew up as a child of a military family, so she wanted to choose a career she'd have some sort of familiarity with, thus leading her to apply to be a bartender at The Hard Deck, which would allow her to be involved with the Navy without actually serving.

» Overall Personality: Lola is a firecracker, always voicing her thoughts and feelings no matter the consequences. She's passionate about her beliefs and values, and will stand up for what she believes is right and just. She is a true extrovert, always making friends and getting to know people who would otherwise be strangers. She's a leader, not a follower, and doesn't follow trends just to fit in. She can be known to trust blindly, as she expects that everyone is as upfront about their intentions as she is. Her (at times, over) confidence can definitely come off as arrogance, but if people call her out on it she'll get very defensive.

» Flaws: Overconfidence, Trusting Nature, Stubborn

» Outlook Views: Optimistic

» Moral Alignment: Chaotic Good

» Social Behavior: Extrovert

» Fears/Phobias: Heights

» Habits: Twirls strands of hair around her pointer finger when bored

» Possible Plot Points:

-When Bradley first arrives at the bar, seeing as he's in civilian clothing, Lola assumes he's just someone's friend of a friend, not an actual member of the Navy. Under this impression, she starts to chat him up and since he doesn't correct her, by the end of the night she's in lust at first sight.

-Lola is a friend of Natasha's, and is part of the pool game between her, Hangman, and the others. Although she'd never heard of Rooster from Natasha, she didn't like the way Hangman was treating him, so after the two had their "pissing contest" (as she called it), Lola takes her turn and wins the game. Rooster is impressed, and as a thanks for showing Hangman up, offers to buy her a drink, having no idea she's the new bartender.

-After successfully completing Maverick's operation, Bradley and Natasha agree to meet at The Hard Deck for a drink. However, Lola, the new bartender, catches his eye, and after seemingly getting stood up, he decides to shoot his shot with Lola; Only for Natasha to show up later in the night after the two have already hit it off. This leaves Rooster in an awkward situation with a tough choice, but he decides to take a chance on Lola and see where things go.
