

The results are in!

Congratulations to Ardent Cinders for winning this event! Looks like the score is now even, with each team having won once. There were plenty of amazing entries this time around from both ends, but this time Ardent Cinders pulled ahead with a score of 350 points. Roaring Icebergs put up a close race with their final score being 325 points!

This rounds judges were CrazyIguana, Candroo, and Srarlight

Now that judging is done and we have the results, we will begin to incorporate this result into the prologue of the upcoming mission and events. While that is being completed members have the option to ask for their score and/or a critique privately through the group's notes. Whoever judged the entry will respond with feedback and the score (which will be a number between 1 and 5, five being the best score possible), letting the member know why they gave the score they did. Please be respectful towards your judge if you do ask for your score and/or a critique, we can't change a score after the judging phase.

News and Group Features!

Happy 20th anniversary Pokemon! Without this franchise this group wouldn't exist!

With the recent Nintendo Direct announcement, some of you might be aware that Nintendo plans on putting out a new Pokemon generation this year around the holidays. Please be aware that if any new pokemon are added into the official pokemon universe, they will be available to use in this group, BUT these pokemon should not be used in the group until AFTER the games release and full data for their movesets and abilities are available.

The biggest announcement we want to make (outside of the winner that is) is the introduction of two new group features. From now on, after every Job and Mission, the admin team will come together and pick the entry we believe had the most entertaining and interesting story for each guild. These two works will be featured in a special folder in our gallery as well as a prominent spot light in these future journals. We hope through this process, we can acknowledge those who are doing well while providing a source of inspiration for other members. Note that anyone from any rank could potentially earn the hall of fame status! We will not be backtracking and looking over old entries due to this slightly late introduction, but this will be a permanent addition from now on.

The second new group mechanic is a random art raffle for entrants during our Job events (not Missions or other events). Those who submit an entry before the deadline are automatically entered to potentially receive prize art of their teams from one of the group admins. Every entry from both guilds will be numbered and a random number generator will be used to determine our winners. There will be two winners every job, one from each guild regardless of which guild won the event. With this in mind, we hope you will do your best on your entries! We are hoping to give those who participate a chance for a reward regardless of skill level.

Job 2 Hall of Fame

Novern's Ardent Cinders Team Lore

katterboxes's Roaring Icebergs Team Phantasms

Both of these stories were very well made and exhibited a lot of qualities we like to see in our entries.

Novern's entry was fun and entertaining, exhibiting great character development and creativity with how the job was handled.

Essentiallysimple's entry was very much the same, providing enjoyable and fluid scenarios as well as colorful character interactions.

Honorable mentions go to:

"Fire in the hole!"

Darian shouted as he ducked his head down behind a tree near the road.

BWWAAAAHHMMM

A long, dull, loud explosion racked the air in the woods. As it faded, Darian poked his head around the trunk of the tree he hid behind. The huge boulder that had been blocking the road was now a medium-sized boulder and a bunch of easily-moved smaller ones. "...Clear!" He shouted upward before he trotted back onto the path. He started back up the path towards a cart he had parked some ways away from the blast.

"-and clear up here!" Lime said as he made a low pass, just over the treeline, to speak to his teammate. Darian flinched as the breeze from the pass blew his hat a little bit off to the side. He adjusted it and continued back towards the cart.

"Aaah! Mr. Disney!" Shrieked a feminine voice somewhere nearby where Darian was h

Team 12 AM

Team Treble Heart

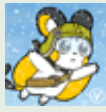

All of these members did a wonderful job with their entries! If you received a feature or an honorable mention and are not already at the advanced ranking, you might want to consider ranking up at least once! You've thoroughly impressed us!

Raffle Winners

And now for our raffle winners!

Job 2's raffle winners are and

We will send our lucky winners a message with prize art of their teams very soon!

That about covers everything! Congratulations to Ardent Cinders for securing victory!

Keep your eyes out for Mission 2!
