

Dragon Ship

(from "Robert E. Howard's Hyboria", an article of unknown origin from an early D&D magazine)

A sailing ship in the form of a winged dragon. The wings of the ship are the sails, the front talons are used in grappling, the nostrils of the dragon shoot a type of greek fire, and the long neck and head serve as a boarding platform. In all things pertaining to sailing treat this vessel as a large galley with twice the speed.
