I. INTRODUCTION

The introduction describes the background of the article discussed as a whole. The introduction should be written clearly and succinctly, between 3-5 paragraphs only, comprising: (a) an adequate background and significance of your paper; (b) concise previous studies related to the title; (c) the main limitation of the previous studies and what you hope to achieve (to solve the limitation); (d) the scientific merit or novelties of your paper; (e) the aim of the study; (f) structure of the article or research questions.

Please note that all writings should be in the paragraph format; this journal discourages the author(s) from writing point per point in the numbering format. The manuscript written uses Tahoma font type, 12 pt font size, 1.5 pt space with a length of 5,000-10,000 words (including of abstract and references).

II. METHODOLOGY

This part should provide a statement about the research methodology. It includes the approaches used in the research and how the author obtained the data. This methodology should give an idea to the reader through the techniques used.

III. DISCUSSION I

This section is the most important section of your article. The analysis or results of the research should be clear and concise. The results should summarize (scientific) findings rather than providing data in great detail. Please highlight the differences between your results or findings and the previous publications by other researchers.

Heading in the discussion section should be consistently written with the structure of the article in the introduction. Headings in this discussion use Roman letters (I., II., III., etc.; you can add more than one part of the discussion, it depends on your structure of the discussion you want to write).

A. Second-Level Heading in Italics (Sub-discussion) (if any)

Following the main headings, sub-heading is provided in the manuscript. The journal allows the authors to use third-level heading (sub-sub headings), which should be numbered in A., B., C., etc.

IV. DISCUSSION II

This section is the most important section of your article. The analysis or results of the research should be clear and concise. The results should summarize (scientific) findings rather than providing data in great detail.

Heading in the discussion section should be consistently written with the structure of the article in the introduction. Headings in this discussion use Roman letters (I., II., III., etc.; you can add more than one part of the discussion, it depends on your structure of the discussion you want to write).

V. CONCLUSION

The conclusion should be written concisely between 1-3 paragraphs only. It should answer the objectives of the research. Do not repeat the abstract or simply describe the results of the research. Give a clear explanation regarding the possible application and/or suggestions related to the research findings.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS (optional)

The author(s) may recognize those who helped in the research, especially funding supporters of your research.

REFERENCES

The total of references is suggested at least 20 sources with at least 70% from the journal resources. The authors must refer to the most recent Chicago Style footnotes and bibliography or you can see an example in the Author Guidelines. Authors are highly encouraged to use a citation manager software, such as: Mendeley, Zotero, and Endnote, in order to generate citations and bibliography.

It must be noted that, for citation and bibliography purposes, names, titles, publishers, institution names must be retained in their original and official language. There is no need to translate English names/titles/institutions.

It must also be noted that the sequence of examples given below do not imply the order of which to classify the literature in the bibliography. Classification or categorization of literature is required, starting from Books, Journal Articles, Theses/Dissertations, Statutory Regulations, Internet. And each classification must be sorted alphabetically.
