

A Healthy Environment For All

SOCIAL MEDIA ACTION

In the context of today's triple planetary environmental crisis of pollution, climate change, and biodiversity loss, the European human rights framework remains the only regional human rights system whose political institutions do not yet explicitly recognize the autonomous right to a clean, healthy and sustainable environment for the people they protect.

At the international level, the United Nations General Assembly recognized the human right to a clean, healthy, and sustainable environment in July 2022, in a resolution that has been supported by all the Member States of the Council of Europe. In addition, at the national level, more than 90% of these Member States recognize the right to a healthy environment in some capacity.

And yet, a recognition of the autonomous right to a healthy environment at the level of the Council of Europe is still missing. Recognizing this autonomous right is crucial to act as a catalyst for the adoption of more effective policies in favor of environmental and climate protection. This recognition would also assist governments in facilitating its implementation, including by corporate actors, and in promoting legal certainty, and it would contribute to unequivocally including environmental defenders as protectors of human rights, thus enhancing protection for the most at-risk category of human rights defenders. This recognition would contribute to equipping the people protected by the European human rights system with an actionable and internationally enforceable right to a clean, healthy, and sustainable environment.

We are coming together to call upon Member States of the Council of Europe to ensure that this important topic will be duly addressed in the upcoming months, starting with the Reykjavik Summit (a once-in-a-generation summit of the Council of Europe that will be held in May, during which Member States will convene to refocus the Council's mission in light of today's threats to democracy and human rights).

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

- SHARE messages on social media calling YOUR Permanent Representative at the Council of Europe to recognize the right to a healthy environment at the Reykjavik Summit.

Together, our voices have the power to bring great visibility to our message and pressure governments to act urgently. We invite you to join us and mobilize others for this critical moment.

Everyone has the right to a #HealthyEnvironment.
Join people from around Europe in calling on the @coe to recognize at its
#CouncilOfEuropeSummit our right to a clean, healthy, and sustainable environment:
#HealthyEnvironmentForAll!

#2

The right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll has been recognized by the @UN_HRC, the @UN General Assembly & by 100+ constitutions worldwide. Yet it's not explicitly recognized in the European #HumanRights system. The @coe has a chance to change that. The time to recognize a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll is now!

#3

The human right to a healthy environment is a powerful tool to protect both people and the planet. It's time to scale up the effort and recognize the right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll also at the European level. The #CouncilOfEuropeSummit is a chance for the @CoE to do just that!

#4

All European Governments will be meeting in a few weeks for the #CouncilOfEuropeSummit while communities continue to face wildfires, drought, and severe storms. We can no longer wait. The @CoE must urgently recognize the right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll.

#5 - A THREAD

1. At the upcoming #CouncilOfEuropeSummit, @coe Member States must send a powerful message to indicate their commitment to protecting human rights in the face of environmental threats.
A thread.
2. The right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll has been recognized by the @UN_HRC, the @UN General Assembly & by 100+ constitutions worldwide. Yet the European #HumanRights system has failed to fill an obvious gap: it hasn't recognized the right #HealthyEnvironmentForAll.
3. A healthy environment is a prerequisite for the realization of all human rights. Over 150 states have already recognized the right to a #HealthyEnvironment through their constitutions, domestic legislation, or regional treaties. And more needs to be done.
4. Over 1000 civil society & Indigenous people have orgs called upon States to recognize the right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll.
In a public event last week, the  Prime Minister @katrinjak stressed the need to recognize this important right at the #CouncilOfEuropeSummit.
5. The time is overdue for @coe to recognize the right to a clean, healthy, and sustainable environment.

Why we need a global recognition of the right to a healthy environment

#1

Explicit recognition of the right to a healthy environment can lead to more effective laws & policies and empower local communities.

The #CouncilOfEuropeSummit is a critical moment for states to step up and recognize the right to #HealthyEnvironmentForAll in Europe.

#Climate change and nature loss affect our well-being and undermine #HumanRights.

The upcoming #CouncilOfEuropeSummit is a critical moment for Europe to recognize the right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll also in the European system.

#3 IPCC REPORT

Recent reports incl. #IPCC makes it clear that protecting the right to a healthy environment is of utmost urgency for communities exposed to climate-induced impacts and to toxic and hazardous substances. It is time for Europe to recognize the right to #HealthyEnvironmentForAll

APRIL 2023

#4 - AIR POLLUTION

Air pollution accounts for 100.000s of premature deaths each year across Europe.

We must hold companies & governments accountable to protect people and the planet.

Join us in calling states to recognize our right to a #HealthyEnvironmentForAll at the upcoming #CouncilOfEuropeSummit
