News

Welcome to 4K and our first newsletter of the year! This week, students enjoyed learning about our classroom routine and the variety of centers and tools we use to learn and play with. Students practiced cutting, gluing, painting, and exploring different math materials that will support their learning throughout the year.

Our big book, A Day at School, provided students with the opportunity to identify a variety of school activities and connect them to their own experiences. Next week, students will continue to identify their friends at school and learn new strategies to get a attention in appropriate ways. Students will also start our helper routine as they learn responsibility at school.
