

Dearest Loving Dad,

I just would not be able to explain in words how I am obliged to you for the sacrifices that you had done in your entire lifetime to make me smile always and encourage me to remain happy forever. I would not be able to forget those days when you nursed me during my sickness. I was in a state of shock for several days after you had silently passed away from this world in the early morning.

I could not believe that you would not be alive anymore. I was on the hostel premises for my graduation and I had received a phone call about your departure from this mortal world. I could not understand on whom I should actually yell at. You were simply gone. At that point in time, I was not in a position to continue my studies. I headed for home and found all my family members were state of grief.

After a few days, I picked up the courage to go back to my hostel and finish my exams held in the college. Dad, you had always wanted me to go higher up and achieve success. You had always wanted me to see excelling in academics and pursue an administrative career in the Federal Government of the USA. I have indeed fulfilled your dreams as I am currently in the position of patent administrator in [mention the federal agency] of the USA.

I am happily settled with my husband and kids. Dad, it is all because of you.

Dad, you had been the best Dad in the world and you will always be the best.

I owe my success to you.

With great regards and love,

From Your loving Daughter,
