Synopsis:

A nameless child who never knew a life outside of being a Warslave, whose very first memory is that of killing a man in battle. Someone without any ambition to even live. He happens into a chance meeting with a cunning noble boy who takes the slave as his own and states that what he wants is everything. A single meeting that can change the world. The noble, Azareth then and their names the child, Slayer. He is to be his faithful dog and sturdy weapon. However, his ambitions for everything came to include things outside of human comprehension, as the two begin to discover that the world has incompressible beings in it that defy logic. The two warriors set out to harsh this world of monsters and death. One seeking ever greater power, the other steadily coming to wonder if there is any sort of greater purpose to life. But how can one finding meaning to life, while only ever surrounded by death?

Logline:

An Epic Dark Fantasy following an ex-slave who only knows how to kill. The man he has dedicated himself to is a power hungry noble infatuated with those things not of this world. The duo set off, forming a party, and slaying monsters on a mission to occur more power for the noble.

Characters:

Slayer:

Character Design: Seven feet tall. Dark maroon-red hair. Exceedingly dark brown eyes. Red cloak, black padded armor, chain armor visible between the shirt and his bracers, clearly over his vital points, with red leather bracers, shoulder piece, and boots. More jaw droppingly, is the sword upon his back. It's sheath is rather odd, being just a top wooden piece, with a long leather line into a holder for the tip.

Weapon: Anything. Greatsword the size of a Zweihänder.

Azareth Mithrael:

Character Design: Light blue hair.

A bastard noble's son who wants "Everything." Slayer's true goal and reason for being.

Moxie:

Moxie had an unstable home life and never learned what it meant to connect with and have a dedicated relationship with a person. She ran off, or more so left without notice, to enlist in the military, acting as a man. However, that became complicated with age so she deserted. She's headstrong and quick to relentlessly pursue something. But the way Slayer acts both drives her crazy, but also makes her jealous. A simple life dedicated and shared with someone else. It's hard to imagine, but even harder to look at directly.

Character Design: She is of a medium height and lean build, with olive skin. The look in her thinner, flint colored eyes, is that of a discerning disinterest. She has a narrow face, with snubby eyebrows. Her equipment denotes someone ready for both travel and combat. A white linen shirt, with hide neck, shoulder, and upper chest guards strapped together, brown pants, leather greaves, and gloves. On her hip is a standard short sword.

Region: Sylinia.

Dirk Kindred: Is opposing Slayer and Azareth at the start, then becomes the number one supporter of them.

Fletcher:

A skill archer and hand of the Swamp Witch. Joining the party as a guide.

Design: Medium length, blonde, shaggy hair, which the length of his bangs makes it hard to see the eyes beneath, but if you do catch a glimpse you would see a rather striking blue.
