| Promotional message | Healthy relationships are foundational for building churches where our love is so distinct that the world knows Jesus is alive today.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |
| Abstract            | Have you ever wondered why we recycle the same problems in the church or ministry year after year? It's been rightly said that many Christians are stuck, stagnant in their spiritual lives. We may be among that number, especially as it relates to growing practically into more loving people. We believe intentional skills are needed for building healthy churches where our love for one another is so distinct that the world will know Jesus is truly alive today. Our hope and prayer is to introduce you to some of these skills. It is a process to develop such skills, but we have to start somewhere. Ultimately, we want to carry such skills into our church, workplace, family, school, and neighborhood. The materials we will use will be adapted from the Emotionally Healthy Relationships curriculum developed by Peter Scazerro. |
