

Position Paper Template (delete this header)

Committee: [Name of the committee]

Topic: [Full title of the topic]

Country/individuals: [Name of your country or individuals name]

(School/Organization: [Your school or organization])

2. Introduction

- Briefly introduce the topic and its global significance.
- Highlight your country's connection to or interest in the topic.

3. Topic Description

- Historical Background: Provide a comprehensive history and context of the issue, detailing key events that have shaped the current situation. Discuss any relevant past actions related to the topic.
- Current Situation: Describe the present state of the issue, linking it to its historical roots and illustrating your understanding of the topic's evolution.
- Key Issues: Identify and discuss the main issues within the topic, showcasing your ability to distill essential information and set the tone for the paper. These issues will guide the focus of your delegation's policy and proposed solutions.

4. Past United Nations Action

- Analyze and present past UN actions related to the topic, identifying significant themes and citing relevant UN resolutions, documents, and speeches. Emphasize the quality of analysis over the quantity of sources, demonstrating how these actions have impacted the issue.

5. Delegation Policy

- Clearly state your country's official stance on the issue, referencing relevant policies, statements, and actions taken by your country.
- Discuss your country's involvement in international treaties, agreements, or resolutions related to the topic.
- Present your delegation's position on each key issue identified, supported by cited and analyzed resources. Provide a thorough analysis of how your country's history, religion, economy, and other factors influence its policy.

6. Proposed Solutions

- Proposal: Clearly and succinctly outline the actions your country supports to address the issue. This should be consistent with your delegation policy and relate to the current situation. It should also dive into the different subtopics and how to address them.

7. References

- List all the sources used in your research and writing, following the required citation style MLA. Ensure that each source is correctly cited to support the credibility and reliability of your position paper.