1992 NBA All-Star Game

The 1992 NBA All-Star Game was the 42nd edition of the All-Star Game. It was hosted at the Orlando Arena in Orlando, Florida on February 9, 1992, where the West defeated the East, 153–113. Magic Johnson led all players with 25 points and was awarded the MVP. The game is memorable for the return of Los Angeles Lakers guard Magic Johnson, who retired before the 1991–92 NBA season after contracting HIV. The game was played in front of a crowd of 14,272 as Dick Enberg and Mike Fratello announced the game for NBC. M Michael Bolton performed the National Anthem. Vanilla Ice provided half-time entertainment.

The All-Star Game features NBA players voted in by fans and coaches by conference and position. The teams are divided into the Western Conference and Eastern Conference. All 11 professional basketball players of the "Dream Team," the 1992 United States Olympic men's basketball team, were also on the 1992 All-Star Game roster.

Los Angeles Lakers guard Magic Johnson had announced his retirement at the beginning of the 1991–92 season due to testing positive for HIV. Nevertheless, he was voted in by the fans as a guard for the Western Conference team in the All-Star Game. He led all players with 25 points and was awarded the MVP. He also took the final shot of the game, a three-pointer, after which point the game ended with 14.5 seconds left, as players ran onto the court to congratulate Johnson and exchange high-fives. Of his performance, Gary Washburn of the Boston Globe wrote, "It was supposed to be a swan song, one of professional sport's most emotional and riveting moments: the farewell of Magic Johnson from the NBA and perhaps mainstream society after announcing that he had contracted HIV."

1992 NBA All-Star Game Recap

The Lakers' Earvin "Magic" Johnson came out of retirement for one game to lead the West to a thumping of the East, scoring 25 points and handing out nine assists in the final All-Star appearance of his Hall of Fame career.

Johnson abruptly hung up his jersey before the 1991-92 season after announcing he had contracted HIV. Still, fans remembered Magic's style and passion for the game and voted him into the starting lineup for the West. In the closing moments of the victory, Johnson playfully engaged in one-on-one defensive matchups with longtime rivals Isiah Thomas and Michael Jordan, stopping both players on successive attempts. Then, in the crowning moment of his evening, Magic nailed a long, buzzer-beating 3-pointer over Thomas, playfully celebrating as he flashed his trademark mega-watt smile.

Seven other players scored double figures for the West, which led by 24 points at halftime. The 153 points scored by Johnson and friends equaled an All-Star game record for non-overtime games, and the 40-point margin of victory was the biggest ever in an All-Star Game.

Johnson wasn't the only former Laker to make his final All-Star appearance in this game. James Worthy, a seven-time All-Star and future Hall of Famer, came off the bench for the West. He had nine points and four rebounds in 14 minutes.

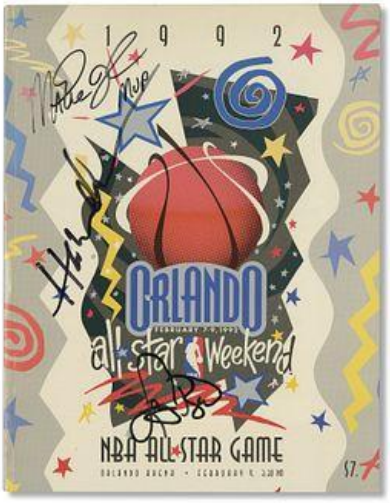

Cedric Ceballos of the Phoenix Suns took home the Slam Dunk Contest trophy with a blindfolded dunk, while the Bulls' Craig Hodges won the last of his three straight 3-Point Shootout championships.

Letter of Authenticity

Wednesday, August 10, 2022

Certification Number: AM00792

To Whom It May Concern:

PSA/DNA Authentication Services has examined this Magic Johnson, Hakeem Olajuwon and Larry Bird signed program. In our opinion, the aforementioned signature(s) is/are authentic.

Johnson's inscription reads "MVP."

The signature(s) is/are consistent considering slant, flow, pen pressure, letter size, and other characteristics that are typical of the other exemplars that we have examined in our hobby and professional career.

As part of the authentication process, the item has been permanently marked with proprietary invisible ink that contains a patented strand of synthetic DNA, which will fluoresce under a calibrated laser. In addition, a tamper-evident label containing a unique alphanumeric certification number has been placed on the item or on this Letter of Authenticity.

Verify the validity of the certification number and exact image at PSAcard.com/DNAcert.
