

Evaluating Author's Purpose	 I can identify author's purpose.	 I can explain the way that writers use structure and language to help them to achieve their purpose.
Name of Text: Meet FoldiMate, Your Laundry-Folding Robot!	The author's purpose is to inform me about a new invention. I know this because it gives informations on a specific topic.	Specific language choices made to help achieve this purpose are: There are big exciting words such as: namesake, infuse limitations and tremendous. There is a lot of facts such as:(takes about 10 seconds to fold each item) And there is a few comments from the writer such as (if someone could only invent a robot to empty the dishwasher, life would be perfect!)	Specific structure choices made to help achieve this purpose are: There is an introduction introducing you to the topic then it explains the process to robot takes to fold the clothes with diagrams to support it.
Name of Text:Germany Unveils The World's Largest Artificial Sun	The author's purpose is to inform me about this cool thing created in germany. I know this because it is a piece of information telling me about a new source of power (Artificial sun)	Specific language choices made to help achieve this purpose are: There are great long intelligent words such as (vaporize, radiation, mimicked and electrolysis) also there are some key facts such as (the world's largest artificial sun, which cost €3.5 million)	Specific structure choices made to help achieve this purpose are: It starts off with a big picture showing the artificial sun itself then there is some main information(key facts and points) Then there is a few more images e.g diagram of how the sun works then a video basically summing up all of the above.

My Evaluation

Both of these informative texts we very interesting to read.

The text which I think most achieved its purpose was the text about the artificial sun.

The reasons for this evaluation are: (list at least 3)

1. Because I learnt something from it.
2. Because it was really easy to understand with the images and diagrams
3. Because there was links to the definitions of the more big exciting words so you can understand them.
4. And Because the video at the end to sum it up was very helpful.
