0:10 - Guiseeppe Falzone comes to the building with a group of his men armed, all off of Metagamed information. No form of communication has happened with anyone in the two factions in order to inform Falzone of the situation at hand.

0:15 - My ticket for a PK gets taken by a Moderator who tells me he can't perform a PK. My ticket has been out for 15 minutes at this point, and there was an admin on to PK (Steven Bills), he just decided to show up on his RP character instead.

2:07 - The Lucchese attempt to get our attention by knocking on the back door. When we tell the Moderator to deal with the metagame, he makes up a bullshit excuse saying "Don't worry about that, it's just another admin trying to fuck with you." There were only two admins on at the time (Spectator and Steven Bills), and only one on duty. If it were another admin, why wasn't it him taking the PK ticket?

2:55 - The server restarts, allowing for a minute pause to the situation.

2:07 - Directly after the server restarts, Falzone has entered my shop with multiple men surrounding the shop. None of these men should even be at the shop in the first place. Great sign of how healthy the RP is from a GameMaster & Admin.

5:25 to 6:10 - Falzone keeps switching from In character to Out of Character in order to attempt to use logs to back his statement. As a Gamemaster, he should set an example and RP use the information he has. Constantly switching back and forth, then saying "I'm staff, I can check logs." shows the abuse behind Steven Bills.

7:10 - This shows the amount of men that Falzone showed up with with no in character understanding of the situation. As I've said before, the Gamemasters need to set an example with RP, and not metagame out situations.

16:10 - Falzone pulls out three weapons equipped to show it off. There is no way in RP to get two primary weapons equipped like he did. This shows he spawned in weapons as a Staff Member to give him an advantage over us.
