

Sonnet CXVI

What is the poet saying about the marriage of true minds? Cite evidence.

To what does the poet compare this love? Why is he using this metaphor?

Explain the first two lines of the third quatrain.

What is the main point of the entire sonnet?

In the context of all the sonnets you have read, to what sorts of situations might the poet be referring?