- Our figure for AAPI Heritage Month is Maya Lin. In 1981, a competition was held to determine who would design the Vietnam Veterans Memorial In Washington, D.C. Out of the 1,421 submissions, the winner was Yale undergrad Maya Lin. Despite winning, Lin faced discrimination as a young Chinese American woman. Her memorial design was still used and has since been deemed a powerful and important piece of American history. Lin went on in her career to design many more memorials, buildings, and sculptures, many of which incorporate her views on environmentalism.

- The Boys Track Team put up a strong fight at the Western Conference meet yesterday. Sutton Gordon performed strongly in the 100 and 4x100 relay as did Parker Sanko in the 400 and Owen Rodriguez in the 4x100 relay and long jump. Anthony Atunku in shot put, Will Feng and Yahav Firestien in the 4x100 relay also performed wonderfully.
- The Girls Track team finished a close second at the Western Conference meet. Joya Clark, Molly Blankenship, Audrey Hetfeld, Aria Shock, Sophia Puertollano, London Draughn, Shiloh Martinez, Shiloh De Lucia, Hadley Hock, Marjorie Wood, Mary Gardner, and Giana Green performed amazingly and kept the girls within 7 points of 1st place. Thanks for all the hard work! Go Spartans!
- Our AAPI Heritage month figure is Binh Danh. Binh Danh reconfigures traditional photographic techniques and processes in unconventional ways to delve into the connection between history, identity, and place. Danh is noted for his contemporary daguerreotypes of national parks. Their reflective surfaces enable people of all backgrounds to see themselves as a part of the beauty of the American landscape. His work has been collected by the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco; the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; the National Gallery of Art, Washington; the San Francisco Museum of Modern Art; and the San Jose Museum of Art, among others. He is an associate professor of art at San José State University. - Today is the start of Asian Pacific American Heritage Month and today we'll be recognizing Meena Alexander. Once she was asked, "What use is poetry?" Her response: "We have poetry so we do not die of history." For Alexander, the task of poetry is to reconcile to a violent and unjust world, to make beauty of life's challenges, rendering it somehow survivable. She has drawn on experiences of trauma, exile, conflicting identity, and the customs of four continents to produce eight books of poetry, a memoir, and two novels. As she has said, "All my writing is haunted by place, the loss of it, the constantly shifting 'I' that tries to find a place in which to be."
