Frequently Asked Questions

Do I have to be a Georgia Tech student to participate in the tournament?

No, you do not have to be a Georgia Tech student or even a Georgia resident for that matter. We are opening this event to anybody in the Southeast US. If you are willing to drive to the event, you are welcome to attend. Casual players are also invited to play and spectate the tournament. Please do note that unless you register prior to the deadline, you will not be guaranteed a power outlet + ethernet port for your computer.

Will food be provided? How much is food?

There will be two blocks of time set aside for attendees to eat. Lunch will not be provided, so attendees are advised to either bring their own lunch or have a method of transportation to purchase lunch off-campus. Dinner will be pizza and be free.

Lunch: 10AM - 12PM | Dinner: 5PM - 6PM

Do I have to be there at the event if I want to play in the tournament?

Yes, you are required to physically be at the venue to participate in the tournament. Playing remotely is not an option.

Do I have to bring my own PC to play? Will there be PCs at the event?

Yes, you will have to bring your own PC to play at the event. PCs will unfortunately not be provided at this event.

THERE WILL BE NO ETHERNET PROVIDED. PLEASE BRING A COMPUTER WITH WIFI.

What do I have to bring to the event to participate?

To participate in the event, you will need: PC/Monitor + power strip. Please do not forget any of these items, as we will not be providing them. Again, ethernet is NOT provided. Make sure your computer can connect via wifi. Attendees that register prior to the deadline will be guaranteed 1 outlet + 1 ethernet port. Regarding food to bring, please see the second question.

Where's the mappool

The mappool is on the forum post!

What's the tournament format

The format in the past has been standard double-elimination, but we are considering changing this to something else (check RSVP form for other options). If the tournament format is changing due to interest or signups, we will update the forum post and rules accordingly, and ping everyone to notify of the change.
