

The Vigilante Rabbit Video Game Part 1 (Vader vs Looter)

Vader walks towards a warehouse. The doors are unlocked, and he slowly opens them. He walks inside and notices that the entire warehouse is nearly dark. Only the first floor and parts of the second floor are in the light. Vader notices the staircase to his right and walks slowly up to the second floor. He notices two other staircases and moves closer to the one on his left that has more light. Suddenly, Vader hears a noise. He turns around and raises his arms slightly. His feet spread apart as he hears someone. The light isn't reaching far enough for him to see who or what is there. He can hear thumps on the steel floor but can't tell with each thump producing a resounding echo.

He looks to his right and doesn't see anything. He looks to his left, still nothing. He looks to his right and tries his best to spot anyone but can only see whatever is in the light. Someone is in the darkness and is running what can be described as an alarming speed. Vader looks to his left again but still nothing. Suddenly and without warning, the figure in the darkness appears in the light. It's Looter!

Looter moves so fast that Vader doesn't even realize he's behind him and can only give out an "AGH!" as Looter's fist hits Vader in the back of the head. Before Vader even recovers from that hit, Looter is already coming at him from the other side and slaps him in the face. It's only a split second when Looter comes back again only to strike Vader in the butt making him spin. Once Vader stops, he's already starting to fall down. His back hits the ground hard with his legs up in the air. His jaw slacks, his eyes crossed, and his feet making a resounding thud on the steel floor. He's already knocked out. Looter goes towards Vader's prone body for his victory pose. His left foot resting on the ground giving him the support to raise his right foot and place it triumphantly on top of Vader's chest. Looter raises his right hand in the air and moves his left hand near his ribs. Once reaching high enough, Looter proudly flexes that bicep with his other hand on his hip. His expression clear that this was no challenge at all.

The background shows "GAME OVER" as Vader's health bar already reached 0.

"AWWWW MAN!" said the teen wolf as he held his FES controller tightly. "I can't believe that I just lost! This game is rigged!" He was sitting on the couch wearing a white t-shirt with black jeans and barefoot in his own living room.

"Dude!" said the teen deer sitting next to him. "I told you not to go in that warehouse yet. You're supposed to get the night-vision goggles first and you have to level up. Vader's speed increases when his stats are at Level 2." The teen deer shaking his head while staring at his best friend. The teen deer wearing a blue baseball cap, red t-shirt, blue jeans and a pair of white socks. The teen wolf's parents had carpet on the floor and didn't want anyone wearing shoes on it.

"Vader always beats Looter whenever they fought against each other." said the teen wolf.

"That's reality." said the teen wolf. "This is a video game where the developers make it challenging, enemies have ridiculous strength, and you have to get all those secret gems to unlock the secret ending with the official song from the soundtrack."

"I'm not giving up until I beat Looter." said the teen wolf. "I'll make Vader proud."

"Sure..." said the teen deer. "He'll really need your help in beating Looter. Anyone can beat that guy. I'm getting some more soda."

The teen deer went to the kitchen as the teen wolf was waiting for that loading screen to finally end. Their phones in their backpacks vibrated due to a new post on their social media. A nearby jewelry store was just robbed by Looter, but Vader showed up on the scene. Looter dropped his loot and is actually going to duke it out against Vader! I think all of us know that Looter is about to get sent back to prison again.....won't he?

The Vigilante Rabbit Video Game Part 2 (Vader vs Buck)

The panther teenager was staring into the tv screen holding his PawS5 controller tightly. He was so focused on the television in front of him that he wasn't even aware his phone was vibrating on the coffee table next to him. He was sitting on the red beanbag chair with crumbs of potato chips and chocolate on the tile floor. Nearby was a paper cup that still had cherry soda after he went through the drive-thru. He wore a blue t-shirt and red pants and only had his socks on. He hated when he'd feel those pieces of potato chips after stomping on them. He thought to himself,

"Why didn't anyone clean the floor?" Though his mother was the one who told him to clean it several times. He didn't have time for that now as he was already on the rooftop level of "The Vigilante Rabbit" video game. On his television screen was the rooftop of an office building. On the ground was a coyote dressed in a black suit and tie but didn't have any shoes or socks on. His legs splayed out, his right arm bent with his hand above his head and claws prone on the ground. His other arm rested on top of his stomach. His health meter at 0. Not too far from him was a hyena seated against the roof access door completely unconscious and also wore a suit. His head lowered and jaw open with a little drool dripping on the floor. The soles of his furry feet in plain sight and prone with the only slightest movement from breathing in and out. A female raven lying on her side and face close to the ground. Her right wing horizontal and bent while the other wing was laid out right next to her face. One leg on top of the other stretched out. She had on a pair of leather pants with a black top but her talons on display for any to see. Next to her was a male bear who only had on a pair of green pants. His arms and legs apart from each other spread-eagle as his head was nearly hanging off the edge of the roof. The soles of his own furry feet prone and matted from what appeared to be an exhausting battle, and next to him a cardinal also wearing a suit without any shoes or socks. He also was on his back with his arms and legs nearly adjacent to each other as his head laid on the side. However, his eyes were slightly open and health meter showed a little bit of red.

Suddenly, a white fuzzy foot with a black footguard moved above the cardinal's head and went down pressed against the feathers on the cardinal's head resulting in a grunt. The cardinal's head now motionless as his health bar reached 0. Those white fuzzy toes on the cardinal's nare and the footguard covered arch matting those red feathers down including the eye. Above the cardinal stood the vigilante rabbit known as Vader proudly standing above him flexing his right bicep while resting his left hand against his hip thanks to the button combo from the panther.

Since these enemies were dealt with, it was now time to head on to the next rooftop. The panther player pushes the right analog stick towards the right, and Vader moved off of the cardinal. Vader started walking towards the edge of the rooftop. When the panther pushed the triangle button down, Vader ran towards the edge of the rooftop. At the edge, Vader jumped from that rooftop high and landed on the rooftop of the building adjacent to it.

Vader's landing was met with a resounding thump leaning down with his right arm up in the air and his left hand pressed firmly down. One knee bent with the other leg stretched out as Vader pressed more weight on his left side. Vader looks to the left while crouching down. He looks to the right in his line of sight and didn't spot any enemies. There shouldn't have been any enemies nearby when four of them were already taken out in the last rooftop. Looked like Vader can relax for now as he stands upright. The panther was relieved but had just noticed that another life bar was present next to Vader's named "Buck"... "Buck"? Was it...oh no...it was too late.

The Majestic Buck jumped down to the rooftop and landed behind Vader. The Majestic Buck had on his trademark green underwear, eye mask and cape. One of Vader's other rogues. Some say you could be so captivated by him that you just stare in shock and awe. Could the same be said about his video game counterpart...but some reviewers stated the fact that developers may have exaggerated his broad build. They may have thought he would've looked less challenging in the game. Before the panther player could try to initiate the button combo for the counter, The Majestic Buck already had his arms up after moving closer to Vader and wrapped them around Vader's neck. He hoisted him up and locked in the sleeper hold on Vader. The game prompts to push the Triangle button repeatedly to get out of the hold.

Vader's legs dangle in the air as he tightens his hands on The Majestic Buck's arms. His health bar already depleting as the panther pushes the triangle button.

KNOCK KNOCK KNOCK "Yo Tony!" came through the panther's front door making the panther stop button mashing momentarily. That slight delay was enough to where the Majestic Buck tightened his grip on Vader's neck. Vader's fuzzy cheeks grew bigger, his eyelids closing, and legs prone and merely dangling in the air. The Majestic Buck smiling and letting Vader go. Vader's health bar reaches 0 and the words "Game Over" start appearing in the background. Vader lying on the ground and eyes dizzy. The Majestic Buck's arms in the air but moving towards his hips as he raises his right furry foot and plants it proudly on top of Vader's chest. Vader's chest pushed down and only rising back up when The Majestic Buck didn't use as much strength in his pose. At that point, it didn't matter as he smiled at the screen with his hands on hips and the screen was changing back to the main menu.

KNOCK KNOCK "TONY!" came through the front door now, and the panther recognized his anteater friend on the other side. He put the controller down in a huff as there'd better be a good reason for interrupting his game. He walked quickly to the door, unlocked and opened it.

"This better be good Kyle. I was on the rooftop level." On the other side was Kyle wearing a white t-shirt and blue jeans with white sneakers. He was breathing rapidly and his eyes were wider than usual. Tony's anger subsided when he saw that his friend was not acting his usual self. "Dude, what's wrong?"

"I've been...texting you several times...didn't you see the news or updates on your phone?!" Kyle moves his right arm up and had his smartphone in his hand showing the breaking news story that was trending throughout the world wide web. Tony's eyes widened and jaw slacked as he looked at it, then quickly at his friend and looking back at that phone. He couldn't believe what he saw...

"Vader defeated and unmasked by Looter" was the headline. A picture of Looter posing with his foot on top of Vader's chest and Vader's mask held up high with the straps blowing in the wind. How...why.... Below the post were several comments and responses of shock and awe. A lot were for cheers to Looter. They may have never favored Vader at all. Two recent posts were added on there. One with a profile pic resembling a teen deer who was in shock and shaking his head. He couldn't believe what he saw. The one above that had a profile pic of a teen wolf who kept saying that this was a joke and couldn't be true. He wouldn't believe it and his level of emotion could be felt with those comments as if he were ready to burst into tears.

This had to be a trick. It couldn't be true. Vader would have to get out of this or may be that wasn't even Vader. Was it really so...was Vader really....defeated?