

Love

Love queen takes her revenge on the law keepers

Love queen was in her G6 sipping champagne and flying to Jakarta. She was going to see a man by the name of Sheikh Ali-Ishmael who was a wealthy land owner with his own private estate and personal zoo on the outskirts of the city. The queen was very interested in his collection of exotic animals especially the famed white tiger. Her flight arrived and she was received with all the pomp and splendor of royalty. As she was taken to see the Sheikh, many young girls walked ahead of the queen and threw rose pedals on the ground for her to walk on. Upon meeting the Sheikh she requested a tour of his famous zoo which he was more than happy to grant. They took an air shuttle to the zoo and when they got to the entrance the Sheikh said, there are no cages in my zoo as all the wild animals roam freely. We have to wear these golden scent bracelets at all times as they will be the only thing to prevent the wild animals from devouring us as food. Love queen brushed off the scent bracelet and proceeded into the enclosure and the Sheikh quickly put on his scent bracelet and ran after the queen. Love queen traversed the artificial habitat as if she knew the layout by heart and after some time she arrived at the lair of the white tigers. Upon her arrival all the white tigers came out very slowly from their den and surrounded the queen. They playfully sniffed her feet and then with one accord they all bowed in her presence. The Sheikh after finally catching up was just dumbstruck by this Christian queen who seemed to have power and control over nature itself. Love queen looked at the Sheikh and said, I will take all of these animals. The Sheikh said, my princess these animals are not for sale. Instantly, all the white tigers began to growl ferociously at the Sheikh and Love queen herself began to get that wild look in her eyes. He quickly reversed himself and commanded his servants to give her all that she desired. Love queen took all the white tigers and his lions and bears as well.

Love queen returned to the palace and decided to take a walk down to the garrison buildings of the 71st Eridani who were tasked with defending the queen and all palace personnel. In the building she passed by stall after stall of flaming horses which were used by the cavalry units. Flaming horses come in reddish brown, white and spotted and to look at one they seem to be in constant motion with the flames rolling down like pillows of waves. If a righteous man were to touch a flaming horse he would receive power and virtue. If an unrighteous man were to touch a flaming horse his hand would be vaporized off. Next she passed by an enormous hanger that housed three of the ships of Chittim. These ships are triangular and pyramidal in shape and hover off the ground with a soft green glow. The weapon systems on these ships mirror those that are found in nature and there is a ring of cannons that go around the outside that fire some type of pulse lightning strike. There are two enormous canons on the bottom that drop fire and brimstone and hailstones the size of large medicine balls. These ships are designed to hover over a target and drop their payload of death and are somehow able to harness the earth's EMF as a propulsion system. When they are hovering over a target they are very vulnerable to attack so each ship is defended by a squadron of flaming horsemen. Love queen arrived at the headquarters and requested to speak with Eduardo who was the commanding angel of the 71st Eridani. Eduardo was one of the exalted angels under the purple banner of God's vengeance and a master of tactics and deception. He would always come up with the most ingenious ways to dispatch law keepers so he was the queen's favorite. Standing orders in the kingdom of love is that law keepers were to be killed on sight but the queen amended this order so that from hence forward all law keepers were to be captured alive and kept in the palace dungeon until further notice. Eduardo nodded to the queen and said, thy will be done my Queen.

Love queen summoned the family into the sun room and spread out on one of the tables the plans for the 'cleansing of the final pollution'. Love queen grew up in a family of builders and construction workers who were very familiar with large building projects. They looked over the plans for some time and then with one accord they all looked at one another and said, this is the greatest plan for revenge in the history of all revenges! Love queen's grand plan for revenge was to build an exact replica of the Roman Colosseum and stock it full of ferocious animals, burning pyres and seasoned gladiators. Only this time instead of Christians being put to death in the arena it would be the law keepers, construction on the Colosseum began at once. They chose a site that was close to the palace and had the ground breaking ceremony. Love queen was given a golden shovel and she picked up a clod of dirt and threw it into the air and said, dust thou art and unto dust shalt the law keepers return. Everyone cheered and clapped at everything the queen did as she could do no wrong in the kingdom of love. Next they had quarried enormous foundation stones that were so heavy that even modern construction equipment was unable to pick them up. So they asked Joshua the high priest if he would levitate the blocks into place and he was more than happy to do so. The Colosseum began to take shape with arches and columns of the Tuscan, Ionic and Corinthian orders and in place of the pagan gods they put statues of the Patriarchs, Matriarchs and Saints of Christ. Finally, the Velarium or the supported awning, the Hypogea with the underground structures and the Cavea or the seating with the queen's enormous throne were finished. The day finally arrived for the opening ceremonies of the Colosseum. Love queen arrived in a golden chariot that was pulled by seven white tigers and driven by Joshua the high priest. Many of the noble men and women arrived in ornate carriages and chariots and some of the most prestigious women arrived with their pet leopards.

Near the entrance of the Colosseum there were three enormous bronze statues erected: one for Faith princess that was sixty-one cubits tall, one for Love queen in the center that was sixty-five cubits tall and one for the new Grace princess that was sixty-three cubits tall. Faith princess knelt before her statue, kissed the feet and it ignited with a red flame. Grace princess knelt before her statue, kissed the feet and it burned with a blue flame. Love queen knelt before her statue, kissed the feet and it burst into purple flame. The lighting of the statues symbolized that the time had finally come for the kingdom of love to be fully ushered in and for Grace princess, Faith princess and Love queen to establish their thrones in the earth. There was a great parade that led into the Colosseum and everyone wore white togas in keeping with the Roman theme except for Love queen who wore a red toga that was held together by a golden chain belt. She also wore a Cartier diamond necklace, Gilan sapphire earrings and a Bvlgari gold and purple wreath fashioned into a crown. The material of her toga was made in such a way that as it moved it accentuated different curves in the queen's body. Men were tripping over one another and falling into the stands down below from gawking at the queen but they were careful not to look directly into her eyes because they knew what would happen. Love queen was seated upon her royal throne and she motioned for the festivities to begin. The law keepers were separated into three groups. The weakest were fed to the wild animals, the strongest were given weapons to fight in the arena and the false prophets were burnt at the stake. John Bacardi the father of modern dispensational christianity was grabbed hold of by an enormous black bear with a crescent shaped tuft of fur on his chest and shaken like a human rag doll until there was no life left in him. L Con Buzzard the father of the modern UFO/alien pop culture that has morphed into a religion for the faithless was ripped limb from limb by a great lion.

The leader of the white tigers whom they had named the 'bone-cracker' somehow managed to get behind Charles Evilution the Great Atheist and with one massive bite gobbled his head clean off. The crowds just erupted at the spectacular takedowns by the Beasts of Ishmael. Next the false prophets were burnt at the stake with some notable names that included Ellen Snakebite, Joseph Smoothie and Charles T Hustle. Ellen complained that she was a true prophet and all the rest were false but when asked if she ever preached grace she replied, I've never eaten any grease in my whole life, I'm a strict vegetarian - and with that they lit the fire. The false prophets suffered terribly in the flames but by their evil influence and example they had led millions to perdition so they were shown no mercy. Finally, the champion law keepers entered the arena which included Eli Left, Moishe Behind and Desmond Lost the man of war!

They immediately began scoring strikes and the gladiator corps was thrown into confusion. Upon seeing this turn of events, Cabello and Jerel the queen's two elite bodyguards donned the gladiator uniforms and entered the arena to deal death and destruction to the law keepers. Cabello quickly confronted Eli Left and hacked off his arms and legs and left him writhing in pain before finishing him off with a death strike. Jerel employed brute force tactics and cut Moishe Behind completely in half with one strike. They decided to team up to take down Desmond and noticed that he had one fatal flaw, he would often stop fighting to help his fallen law keepers so they waited for just the right moment. Then Cabello from a kneeling position leaped some thirty feet into the air and came down squarely on Desmond's back breaking it in three places. Desmond screamed in agony and Cabello held him in place as Jerel walked very slowly towards his fallen prey. He picked up Desmond's head by the scruff, looked him in his eyes and said, your worthless law keeping caused many of my brothers and sisters to be lost forever - this is for them! And with that he came down so hard on his neck that his blade sunk a foot and a half into the cold hard earth. The crowd just went crazy bonker nuts at the skillz and prowess of Cabello and Jerel.

Everyone thought the festivities were over with the deaths of the false two witnesses and Desmond Lost until Love queen wrapped her arms around Jeff, kissed him on the cheek and whispered into his ear - you're next! Jeff who was so greedy for power in the kingdom of love had emptied a clip of hollow points into the queen's husband's heart and dumped his body in a back alley and made it look like a robbery gone wrong. No one ever found out and in a few short months he and the queen were married. He had finally thought that all his problems were behind him and that he was accepted in the kingdom of love but the queen had just been playing him all along so her revenge on him would be all the more terrible. As they drug Jeff through the stands to the executioner's block he screamed at the queen for mercy but she just laughed at him with the evil cackle of a cruel witch. They placed Jeff's neck on the block and in the final few moments of his life he realized with the utmost clarity that there are consequences to breaking the heart of a queen and some sins can never be forgiven. The final words of Jeff were him mumbling something about Grace is free and Faith is alone and Love lasts forever but no one cared for what Jeff had to say. Love queen arose from her throne and extended her elegant arm into the air and gave the sign - thumbs down. The blade fell and Jeff's head shot off his body with a spray of blood. It hit the cold hard ground with a bounce and rolled into a mud puddle a few feet away. At the sight of Jeff's head landing in the mud puddle the crowd let out a roar that has never been heard before or since. Jeff used to terrorize and torture the inhabitants of the kingdom of love like some sick game he could never stop playing so their jubilation at his demise was understandable. Jeff who had escaped death more times than a cat and slipped out of every trap that was ever set for him now with his head at the bottom of a mud puddle had finally met his end and the hands of....HIS BELOVED QUEEN.

The end