Goog sends the tweet from his phone before getting up from his desk and exiting his office building

Goog roams around the city, stopping at a small fountain to rest, as he's relaxing a blonde woman makes her way up to him and initiates a conversation

Blonde Woman: Hey, you're that politician Goog right?

Goog: Indeed I am, nice to meet you, what's your name?

Blonde Woman: Chelsea, I'm a big fan of your work in government. This is the first election I'm gonna be able to vote but I know that the Democrats are the party for me. I'm so happy that we now have representation in The Commonwealth.

Goog: That means a lot to me Chelsea, the past few months have been amazing for Democrats in Chesapeake and we're only getting stronger by the day. Can I count on you to hit the polling booth on election day?

Chelsea: Without a doubt, I've followed politics for a while and I won't miss my chance to help make a change. May I have a picture if you don't mind?

Goog: Of course, I'd love to.

Chelsea pulls out her phone and brings it to the camera and snaps a picture

Chelsea: Thank you so much, blue wave!

Goog: Let's make it happen, bring your friends, your family, acquaintances, anyone else, and vote.

Chelsea walks away texting her friends about what just happened

Goog continues his stroll before being confronted by a couple

Bald Man: Hello Goog, I'm Jim and this is my wife Rachael. Lifelong Democrat voters.

Goog shakes Jim's and Rachael's hands

Goog: Fantastic to meet the both of you, I love getting to know passionate voters like yourselves.

Rachael: We have two kids in middle school so really we have no other choice, neither the Socialists or Republicans come close to caring about education.

Jim: That's right. Our kids are our life, stuff like the NCGH Act, Dual Credit Encouragement and Standardizing GPA would be amazing for the children.

Goog: Democrats always have and always will do what we can to improve our crumbling public school system. I'm so happy that you trust us to do what is right for The Commonwealth's youth.

Rachael: Mhm, hearing about the stuff Socialists did in Atlantic turned us off from them and the Republican are... Republicans.

The three share a laugh between them

Goog: It's common sense really.

Jim: So Goog, would it be out of line to ask for a selfie with me and the wife?

Goog: Absolutely not, come here.

Goog parts ways from the couple making his way to a nearby Church

Goog looks around the beautiful church filled with Christian iconography, as he looks around a man approaches him from behind

Durag Man: Assemblyman Goog?

Goog turns around and looks at the man before smiling

Goog: Just Goog, hello my fellow, how's your day been?

Durag Man: Pretty good yeah, my name's Gregory and I saw what you tweeted so I decided to take you up on that offer.

Goog: Ha, well it'd be my honor. Anything specific you want to speak on?

Gregory: Yeah just one question, don't wanna keep you here all day. So, what's your policy on drugs? I know the Socs support decriminalizing some and the GOP is a mixed bag of Trads and Libertarians, but what is the Democrats' take on the subject?

Goog: Well Gregory, opinions also vary in the Dems but what most of us believe is that The War on Drugs, or any war on nouns for that matter, has been an abject failure. Low income communities have been devastated by these policies and it's unfair, so I've taken initiative and submitted a bill called the Chesapeake Drug Liberation Act to end the criminalization of most drugs. This will also push the Governor to give a pardon to all non-violent drug offenders in Chesapeake prisons.

Gregory: That's awesome man, thank you for working on a policy that's near to me, can I get my selfie?

Goog: If you promise you'll vote Democrat on election day.

Gregory: You can count on that.

Goog: Alright then.

Goog and Gregory take a selfie

Gregory: Cheers dude

Gregory exits the Church

Goog begins to leave the Church but is almost immediately approached by another person

Hat Dude: Goog! Goog! Wait up!

Goog turns to the man, somewhat startled

Goog: Hey man, glad to meet you but try and keep it down alright? Place of worship y'know?

The Hat Dude has stopped to catch his breath after running to meet Goog

Hat Dude: Sorry wheeze Sorry, the names Guillermo and I had to stop you for a pic.

Goog: Sure thing pal. You doing fine?

Guillermo composes himself and stands up from his hunch position

Guillermo: I'm doing great. So I have a question for you buddy. I see politicians talk on TV, in magazines or even the Internet, but as far as I'm concerned you folk are all liars behind the curtain.

Goog: Thanks.

Guillermo: Nothing personal, so anyway, I couldn't give up this opportunity to meet you in person. You wouldn't lie to me face to face would you?

Goog: No of course not.

Guillermo: Alright then, tell me this Mr. Politician, are you gonna raise my taxes? That's all I wanna know.

Goog: Probably not my friend. I, and many other Democrats, believe in a progressive tax plan. Where the rich pay more in taxes, the middle class get tax cuts, and the low income class and those in poverty will be supported by welfare and social programs - all funded by the ultra wealthy and 1%. We're gonna make the people who have more pay their fair share.

Guillermo: That's what I like to hear. Now, my picture?

Goog: Totally.

Goog and Guillermo stand side by side to take a picture

Goog: Can I have your promise to vote for the Democrats on election day?

Guillermo: Oh, I don't vote.

Goog: Bruh

Guillermo runs off as Goog watches him go by

Goog: Alrighty then.

Goog leaves the Church and heads back to his office, he's had enough selfies today
