Findings

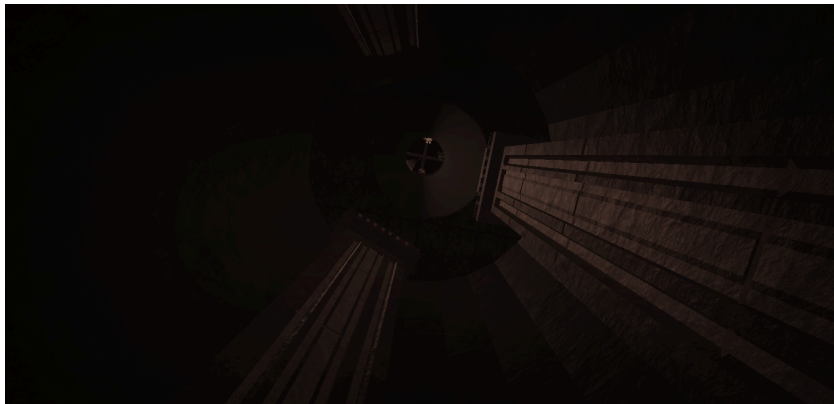

Report: When you spawn in you are met with 2 giant statues. When you click on one of them the platform beneath you drops you begin your Descent into Madness. When you reach the bottom you are met with a hallway leading to a dungeon with cells that contains some gorey and grotesque sights (see screenshots). When you reach the end of the cell block you're met with an even bigger statue with its hands in the air as if it were praying. You have to climb a chain to get a key to unlock the door behind the statue. When I dropped back down and turned back around I was met with a shocking sight I encountered some form of demon or creature or possessed object. I was genuinely scared, I jumped from my seat. When I unlocked the door I was met with 2 other giant statues that had pools beneath collecting what I believe to be blood or some other form of liquid such as ectoplasm. There was another door but I couldn't open it but above it was a symbol I have to understand its history or meaning.

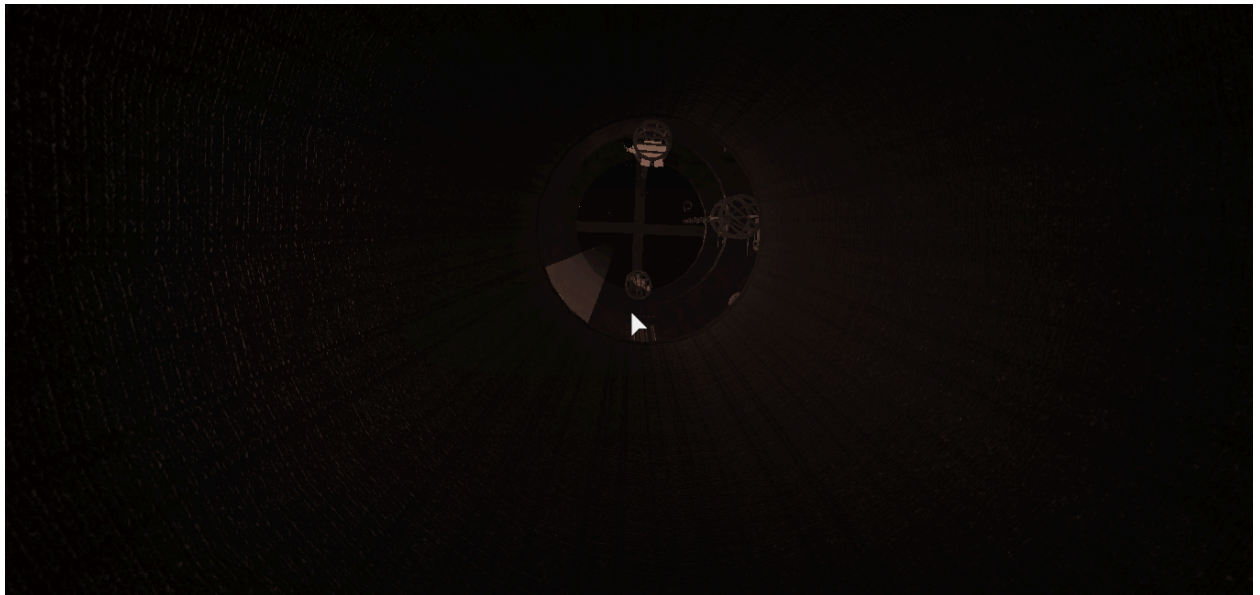

Theories: I believe this may be a base of operations for some kind of cult or a group of sick individuals praising some false god. The Creature I encountered is still a mystery and I will definitely follow up on this case.
