BLURB/SYNOPSIS:

Eros gave Amara Hart two rules: never tell anyone she is a cupid and absolutely never fall in love. Everything was going just fine until tech CEO Julien Grant walked into her bakery with a proposition...

Amara Hart is known as the Cupid of New Orleans. At least, that's what everyone calls her. But, she doesn't shoot arrows. She bakes. With a little magic and a lot of frosting, she helps hopeless romantics find their perfect match through her bakery. But when her matchmaking numbers start to fall, Eros threatens to shut the bakery down.

Her only hope comes in the form of Julien Grant, a brilliant, oh so sexy, tech CEO who has no interest in love but plenty of interest in making his new dating app a success. He needs Amara's match making expertise, and she needs his business.

The plan is simple: make the app successful, save her bakery, and move on.

Except Julien is starting to suspect Amara is hiding something. And the closer they get, the harder it becomes for Amara to follow Eros's rules.

When a cupid falls in love, things are bound to get messy. Especially when magic, secrets, and a whole lot of frosting are involved.

SAMPLE PASSAGE FROM BOOK:

Julien opens his door and glances at me over his shoulder. “Amara, you can’t even possibly understand just how badly I want you. But you said you didn’t want anything serious.”

I bite my lip, appreciating the way his arms look with his sleeves rolled up. “I can’t have anything serious,” I confirm. “But that doesn’t have to stop us. We can have one night.”

“Oh, little cupid.” He runs his eyes over me slowly, a sly grin forming on his face. “Sex with me is very serious. One night won’t nearly be enough once I get a taste of you.”
