Q: Some people say that Japan should use the Internet for people to vote in elections. Do you agree with this opinion?

① Convenience
② Cost
③ Security

A: Yes, I agree. I think Japan should use the Internet for people to vote in elections.
First, people who feel difficulties to go to real voting places will be able to vote easily in their house.

For example, it is too hard to vote for people who live far from voting places, elderly and disabled people in the current election system.

Second, some young people do not like to go to vote these days.
However, if they could vote on the Internet, they would attend the elections more comfortably using their smartphones. As a result, voter turnout may become higher.

In conclusion, I believe that it is a good idea for Japanese people to use the Internet in elections.
