Symphokinesis: Harper can sing songs that produce specific effect on anyone who listens but it depends on the type of music he sings.

- Healing Hymn: When singing hymns, he can produce healing effects on those who are nearby.
- Power up Pop: When singing pop (or any energetic) song, he can power up abilities and physical attributes such as strength and speed.
- Disorienting Screamo: When singing screamo (or any heavy abrasive) songs, he can create panic and disorientation among his enemies.

Limitations: The strength and effectiveness of the songs are determined by the distance, number of targets, and quality/clearness of voice. Overusing this power can strain his voice to the point where he loses his voice for a couple of days.

Plague Control: Harper can make others sick with minor forms of diseases like chickenpox, flu, fever, etc.

Limitations: Can only be done if his hands make direct contact with skin. It cannot kill nor is it contagious. Only meant to weaken the target momentarily with symptoms.

Archery Mastery: Knows how to use a bow and arrow.

Health Prognosis: He knows the general health of individuals he looks at. For a more accurate reading, he must touch them.

Character Background

Harper was born to a family of singers, musicians and artists. From an early age, he was classically trained in opera, piano, among other things but as he grew older, his taste in music changed. He felt more attuned to metal and screamo music so in an attempt to set their son right, Harper was sent to a private school abroad. What his parents did not know was the fact it was not a private school abroad but Camp Half Blood for demigods.
