

Well, boys and girls, this is quite the shock. I'll be honest, I didn't believe any of you/your group mates could get this far. Guess I was wrong. Even though you have almost made it, there is still work left to do. Just wait, you are about to have to think way back to earlier in the year. Remember doing those slides for figurative language? Well, that's exactly what you have to do again. You will have five pictures that show an example of figurative language, and you just need to think back and remember what each one was. Need help? I think your teacher might have given you a sheet in your LA binder that defines different types of figurative language. All you have to do is use the first letter of the five answers, and there's your code.

Where to find the pictures, you ask? I've already told you. Just be bold, and look back through this note.
