Breakdown of our commitments:

- To date, we have committed $13,000,492* to a total of 98 organisations, working across 12 countries. You can find our partners, amounts, and grant purposes in section 4 below.
- A further $1,048,132 will be going towards capacity building programmes for partners, including developing their safeguarding policies & practices.

- In addition, $840,000 has gone to support our own grantmaking and programs (this amount comes from two generous core support funders).

*Disclaimer: The situation is changing very fast, so the below information may go out of date quickly. We monitor the numbers of displaced individuals in both Ukraine and the surrounding countries, and continually assess the needs and gaps in service provision as they emerge, updating this document accordingly.

2. Ukraine overview

a. Recent developments

Just over one year ago on the night of 23rd February 2022, Russian troops invaded Ukraine. Over the past 12 months, the suffering and impact on the people of Ukraine has been devastating, with an unprecedented scale of mass displacement of civilians. More than 13 million people - including 4.8 million children - have been displaced from their homes, representing roughly  $\frac{1}{3}$  of the Ukrainian pre-war population.

In updated figures, as of 10th February 17.7 million people are in need of humanitarian aid according to the UN. More than 8 million refugees from Ukraine have been recorded across Europe - with 4.8 million applying for temporary residence outside of the country. Around 50% of those who have fled abroad are women, and 40% are children – as Ukrainian men aged 18–60 are largely forbidden from leaving the country. Though many refugees have since transited to other countries, including Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, France, Greece, Italy, and the UK – or have returned to Ukraine, (there have been over 7.3 million "cross-border movements" back into Ukraine, but this number does not necessarily reflect individual refugees returning) – millions have stayed in the border towns and major cities of Ukraine's neighbouring countries. These influxes of refugees have considerably strained resources in those countries – with Moldova, a nation with a population of 2.6 million people, currently host to around 95,000 refugees, boasting the highest refugee per capita rate (see 'Regional overviews' below for more info). Meanwhile, inside Ukraine, a further 5.3 million people are believed to be internally displaced as of January 2023, with an estimated 680,000 people forced from their homes in January (40% fleeing from the east and 25% from the south of the country). Currently, the average duration of displacement among IDPs in Ukraine is 197 days, with 70% of current IDPs in Ukraine having been displaced for six months or longer.

3. Choose Love's Response

A summary of Choose Love's 2022 strategy can be found in the appendix at the end of this document.

Choose Love 2023 Strategy

During the year ahead, we are focused on achieving the most impact for the most vulnerable displaced communities affected by the war in Ukraine. Groups of displaced people that are identified as the most vulnerable include: people with chronic illnesses (AIDS, HIV, cancer etc.); Roma communities; families with children on the verge of survival; LGBTQI+ communities, and people with disabilities (physical, mental and complex disorders).

We are prioritising funding to partners that are not just providing support to one or more of these extra vulnerable groups, but whose programs are run by people who represent them. As an example, NGOs do not just provide support for people with disabilities but whose programs are run by disabled people. We closely monitor displacement changes and we will continue to support partners in regions that have high populations of internally displaced people, such as the Dnipro, Poltava and Kyiv regions.

Many of our partners have highlighted that they are aiming to shift from emergency response to “adapting to the new reality of life”. This includes a greater focus on psychological support, rehabilitation, inclusion, and employment programs. However, it is important to note that humanitarian aid is still needed, particularly in the newly liberated territories in Ukraine. Our partners stay agile and ready to react depending on how the situation will develop. They all have experience in both evacuation and humanitarian aid distribution.

As the fighting intensifies, the highest risks are expected in the coming months. With a harsh winter drawing to a close and as Russian offensive actions at the front line become more severe, displacement patterns and priority needs could be further impacted. We will remain flexible to respond accordingly.

Finally, our efforts to strengthen the capacity of our partners working across Ukraine and neighbouring countries will continue throughout 2023, with ongoing investments being made to further build their organisational and leadership abilities and ensure that they have the resources and training needed to continue their life-changing work.

4. Regional overview

A year on from the start of the full-scale invasion, more than 8 million people have fled Ukraine, with over 4.8 million people registered for temporary and national protection schemes, the highest number being Russia, Poland, Germany and the Czech Republic, with Moldova having the highest number of refugees per capita. It is estimated that more than 644,000 third-country nationals (TCNs) have also fled Ukraine over the course of the year (MDP, 2023).

In neighbouring countries or those receiving Ukrainian nationals or residents, temporary protection ensures the rights of many to access support services and humanitarian assistance. However, there are still practical, administrative and legal barriers that are limiting access and inclusion in national systems across education, social protection, accommodation, employment and health care access (OCHA, Feb 23). Language differences and illiteracy are also major barriers to accessing services, information and local inclusion opportunities. These barriers can also undermine possibilities for self-reliance and increase the potential for rising tensions between refugee and host communities that we are seeing across neighbouring countries, exacerbated by the energy crisis and inflation.

In addition, there is a need to ensure refugees' access to protection and assistance on a non-discriminatory basis, including the rights associated with temporary protection or similar legal statuses in host countries. For minority or marginalised groups like the LGBTQ (+) community and the Roma communities, stigma and discrimination has created barriers in accessing support services, leading to a need in specialised services like temporary safe houses, rent support and cash assistance led by those with lived experience in host communities.

Main needs remain cash, accommodation and employment as rental costs and energy prices increase. In particular is a need for more permanent accommodation (in particular for parents with young children, who cite enrolling their kids in nurseries and schools as a related priority); finding work – either because they left livelihoods behind in Ukraine or because their remote jobs don't cover the higher costs of living in host countries; and childcare (frequently cited as a prerequisite and the immediate concern for single mothers, so that they can, in turn, work and make a living).

More than 80 % of refugees hope to return home but for now most will stay in their host countries due to the safety and security situation in Ukraine. A regional overview of the number of refugees across Europe can be found here.

Summary of Choose Love 2022 strategy

There are two complementary strands of strategic humanitarian support: (1) emergency response and (2) longer-term support and capacity building. During 2022, Choose Love worked to ensure that both of these strands reached organisations and communities in Ukraine and the surrounding countries. We also used our strategic communications and narrative strengths to counter misinformation and mobilise our network of influencers.

In Ukraine, we committed funding for humanitarian aid on a basic level, covering food, hygiene kits, bedding, evacuation support and medicine. Where we can be most helpful is often supporting core costs as well as the operational costs associated with getting supplies into the country including supporting partners in neighbouring countries running emergency supplies into the country through safe passages. In the surrounding countries, we worked on getting support to emergency shelters and longer-term accommodation programmes, teams organising welcome and inclusion, Ukrainian-led teams translating and sharing information, legal advice, and advocacy efforts.

One of our key focuses as part of our strategy has been to support local organisations addressing the needs of the most marginalised communities in Ukraine and surrounding countries. As we have unfortunately seen time and time again women & children, LGBTQIA+ people, disabled people, and other marginalised and oppressed groups are left behind by governments and major humanitarian aid agencies. Marginalised groups are often unable to access aid and services such as shelter, food packages, and legal and medical support offered by the big humanitarian aid organisations due to a lack of understanding of their specific needs and experiences. Additionally, they are also at much higher risk of violence and exclusion due to systemic discrimination embedded in the very organisations and institutions meant to support them.

We also worked to focus support on local organisations meeting the specific needs of the most marginalised communities in Ukraine and surrounding countries. From funding network-based relocation for the LGBTQIA+ community, accommodation services, legal advice for BIPOC who have just reached Warsaw, and specialist vehicles that can accommodate wheelchairs for people with disabilities, Choose Love is continuing to work with local communities to address the discrimination marginalised groups are facing while they flee to safety.

This has included supporting key anti-trafficking organisations that are working on prevention programmes on travelling safety and finding safe employment opportunities in neighbouring countries. The majority of people fleeing Ukraine are women and children and therefore are a highly vulnerable group. We partnered with anti-trafficking organisations that are working on prevention programmes, including dispensing accessible information and resources to people through technology, targeted campaigns, and direct services in neighbouring countries, on how to travel safely as people flee. The response aimed to provide long-term services such as mental health support for those who have been exploited or trafficked, and information on safe pathways for employment after people have resettled and are looking for income opportunities. You can read more about our focus on Minority Groups in the Choose Love campaign here.

We have been evaluating the best way to ensure mid-and long-term support and capacity building. All partners are cognizant that they will need to be prepared for increasingly growing needs for an unforeseeable future. One such example is that refugees are mostly housed with families and private homes and will need mid- and long-term housing options very soon. Some partners have technical and other capacity needs e.g., legal aid organisations have been ready to train lawyers to respond to legal needs around immigration to adjust their legal status. Last but not least, as Poland and the Ukraine crisis are in the spotlight and in news headlines, donor funding is being mobilised right now. However, all groups have raised concerns about the sustainable flow of resources to be able to continue this critical and life-saving work down the line. They are committed to continue offering and expanding services but will need funding for long-term work.

Contextual update on the humanitarian situation

It is estimated that in 2023, 17.6 million people in Ukraine will require multisectoral humanitarian assistance, 45% of whom are women, 23% are children and 15% are people living with disabilities. Approximately 40% of Ukraine's population is now in need of humanitarian assistance and protection, of which 56% are women and girls, 23% are children, and 15% live with disabilities. [\[ICDP, Feb 2023\]](#).

As of February 2023, 5.3 million people are believed to be internally displaced, with the majority of IDPs continuing to originate from, and reside in, the eastern part of Ukraine where conflict still persists. 42% of IDPs are children under the age of 5-17, with 41% being over the age of 60 years old \(IOM, Feb 2023\). Financial assistance and solid fuel continue to be among the most pressing needs identified among IDPs, followed by clothes, medicine & hygiene items and food. 38 % of IDPs indicated that they did not have sufficient funds to rent or pay for housing through the remaining winter months, with the average temperatures in February for a typical day ranging from a high of 31°F \(-1°C\) to a low of 18°F \(-8°C\).

In October 2022, attacks targeting energy infrastructure intensified, often in and around urban areas, disrupting public services including water, electricity, health care, education, and social protection. Millions have been left without power, heating and water for days on end across Ukraine some cities experience 4-hour blocks of power three times per day. Winter conditions are contributing to an increased spread of acute respiratory illnesses whilst also aggravating chronic illnesses, pressing the need for electricity access and shelters with utilities alongside items essential like fuel [coal, wood etc], bedding and battery packs.

The ongoing war has destroyed at least 35% of the country's economy and destroyed people's livelihoods, leaving IDPs in need of paid work or business or alternative ways to generate income for financial independence. Food and necessary items are still widely available in most areas under the control of the Government of Ukraine but are difficult for many people to afford without cash, voucher, or livelihood assistance, and are much more difficult to obtain in conflict areas experiencing shelling. There is a growing need for employment programs and livelihood support as well as cash assistance projects for people to access vital services, healthcare, safe accommodation and other essential services.

There continues to be mass destruction of healthcare facilities and infrastructure, with 50% of medical facilities being non-function in some parts of the East and South. In addition, there have also been targeted attacks on healthcare personnel leading to their forced displacement. At least one in every three Ukrainians lacked access to medical services as of December 2022 \(IOM\), with 27% of IDPs recording as not being able to afford medications. This has increased the need for medical supplies and humanitarian assistance, especially to support people living with chronic illnesses (AIDS, HIV, cancer etc), pregnant women and people with disabilities, including the need for specialised equipment and adapted shelter and transportation.

The cold weather in addition to the relentless attacks on energy infrastructure and social isolation are negatively impacting the mental health of the population. WHO has concluded that at least 9.6 million people may have mental health conditions, with 25% of Ukrainians at risk of severe mental health conditions due to ongoing full-scale invasion. There is a need for mental health and psycho-social support (MHPSS) services for displaced people as well as for NGO teams as we see increased burnouts, as well as stress-induced medical problems such as strokes and heart attacks among volunteers and humanitarian workers.

Many partners on the ground in Ukraine fear about the upcoming winter season. It is anticipated that Russian forces will increase their attacks on critical infrastructure. Once more, people are preparing for an even harsher winter due to the potential lack of heat and electricity.

The constant threat from Russia of initiating a nuclear disaster in the Zaporizhzhia area compels our partners to prepare for a new emergency mode.

Seven weeks after a dam collapse in a Russian-controlled area of Kherson province in southern Ukraine, thousands of Ukrainians continue to struggle with accessing clean water, and aid workers report that the situation is dire. Our partners persist in providing support to those affected. Currently, one of the most significant shortcomings in the area is the accessibility to medications.

There have been an increasing number of requests from partners on the ground to support the physical and mental well-being of team members and volunteers. Ongoing Russian full-scale invasion, constant high levels of stress and lack of sleep make people not just burn out but there have been more cases of strokes and heart attacks in the NGO sector.

Ahead of the 2023/24 winter, Ukrainians confront challenges from damaged residential and non-residential structures, internal displacement, heightened humanitarian needs, and extensive harm to energy, water, and heating systems.

As the new school year begins, grassroots organizations play a crucial role in ensuring that displaced, vulnerable children receive the education and psychosocial support essential for their development. Education in school settings is crucial for children's mental health, social development, and academic achievement; thus, it's required to be funded in humanitarian responses.

Timeline of Key Events (Continually Updated)

The timeline below provides an overview of key events in the conflict; this map shows the locations of Russian control in the south and east of the country; and the Ukraine Live map provides rolling updates along key conflict lines.

2023

- 15 November - In its latest assessment of the developments on Ukraine's front lines issued on Nov. 14, 2023, the Institute for the Study of War concluded that the Russian forces are likely attempting to regain the “theatre-level” initiative in Ukraine by conducting “several simultaneous offensive operations” in eastern Ukrainian regions.
- 10 November - According to a survey conducted by Ukrainian polling NGO Rating, 44% of Ukrainians have experienced being in a war zone as result of Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine in February 2022. Previously, 18% of the population had experience being in a war zone, of which 6.7% were there as combatants or assistants to the military.
- 2 November - Among Western countries, Russian propaganda is targeting Poland with the most fakes, as reported by Myroslava Markova, Senior Research Analyst at VoxCheck. In addition, the Russian media portray Ukrainian refugees as an uncultured force that does not respect Poles. There were also reports that Ukraine's defeat was obvious and predictable and that all the resources spent on Ukraine were actually wasted, so it was not worth providing them.
- 23 October - the Spokesperson for Ukraine's Main Directorate of Intelligence, Andrii Yusov, revealed that Russia had currently positioned more than 400,000 soldiers within Ukrainian territory.

OHCHR suggests that the actual numbers are likely much higher due to delayed information from combat zones and numerous unverified reports. Specifically, verification is pending for data from Mariupol (Donetsk region), Lysychansk, Popasna, and Sievierodonetsk (Luhansk region), where allegations of significant civilian casualties persist.
