

DRAFT Workshop details, Sunday 11.30 – 12.45 pm	Presenter/s	Photos
"First Nations wisdom: a time of listening to Elders" - breakout room Bourke	Prof. Anne Poelina, Citizen of the Nyikina Warrwa Nation, researcher at University of Notre Dame, Chair of the Martuwarra Fitzroy River Council Aunty McRose Elu, Torres Strait Islander advocate for community & climate

"Laudate Deum, Pope Francis' latest teaching, context and developments since Laudato Si'." - breakout room Dowley

While Laudato Si' received global media coverage, the more recent document, Laudate Deum, was largely ignored. Written to address the COP 28 meeting in Dubai, it is a shaper document, entirely focused on the issue of climate change. It pushes further on countering arguments against climate change and addressing what urgently needs to be done. The workshop will explore its contents and discuss its implications for the climate movement.

Prof Neil Ormerod, Catholic theologian with numerous articles on Laudato Si' and ecological conversion

"What a phase-out of fossil fuels might look like in the day-to-day lives of Australians: Why we need not be afraid." - breakout room Molloy

The massive ongoing cost reductions and manufacturing scale in solar and batteries, along with continued technology improvements, means that the energy transformation is growing in confidence and inevitability, even as the climate science reminds us we need to make this transition, fast. China is leading the world.

Tim Buckley, Director of Climate Energy Finance; has 35 years' financial markets experience

"What lies ahead? Making the most of peak moments such as Queensland and WA elections, the federal election and COP31" - - breakout room O'Brien

Sophia Walter, Deputy Director, Solutions team, Climate Action Network Australia

Tejopala Rawls, ordained in Buddhist Triratna Order, ARRC Community Organiser & former Sustainability professional

See another workshop below.

"How people of the Blue Pacific Continent have taken leadership in past UN COP negotiations, and how best Australians could listen to their voices as we approach COP31." - breakout room
Larkin

'Alopi Latukefu, Director,
Edmund Rice Centre, formerly in Ministerial advisory & academic researcher roles

