

Picking the Best Tow Truck for Emergencies

Breaking down does not happen by choice and no one ever chooses where his or her vehicle will break down. Accidents, broken ball joint, running out of gas or flat tires are common issues that can affect you while on the road. Calling a tow truck is not something that anyone looks forward to but unfortunately, it happens. It is always nice to have a tow truck service that responds and gets to you as quickly as they can. So, how do you choose the best tow truck? Some of the things to think about include:

Why does the vehicle need towing in the first place?

The most common reason to call a tow truck is when your vehicle breaks down and you need roadside assistance. However, there are many situations that may warrant your need. Other situations that may make you call for help include off road recovery, equipment towing, flatbed towing, and car transportation to another location, flat tire, battery installation, locking yourself out of the car, out of oil, heavy truck towing, motorcycle towing, or boat towing. There are some tow trucks that have an area of specialization and so you need to check whether your area is covered. Most tow trucks have an about us page and you can gather such information there.

Take your time

As with every other industry, there are good and bad guys. To find the right company, you can start by asking for recommendations, your friends and family can be quite instrumental in such a case. You may get great suggestion and a few pointers regarding what you should avoid.

Trusted review sites can also be checked out. A positive review from a trusted source can go a long way. Sometimes it is better to settle for an annual service if available so that you know whom to call if anything goes south.

Consider the cost

The true towing cost should be considered. Do not settle on a service provider based on the charges. Consider the price per mile as well as the hook-up fee. The hook-up fee usually covers costs related to the vehicle being attached to a tow truck. There are companies that are able to offer a hook-up fee that is quite low and this is often aimed at getting you to choose them. At the end of the day, the company still requires to pay the price per mile. Find out how much you are required to pay in total beforehand.

Customer service

When you place the call, you need to think about how you were received and how you were assisted. When the customer care is poor, it may mean that the services offered are poor as well. The dispatcher needs to be helpful and very knowledgeable as well. If you get a bad feeling, then you should try getting services from somewhere else.
