

Freelanders

Message received, however, they are already moving on some other intel (to which you are not privy). They remain indebted to you and are not unsympathetic to your claims. Therefore, they offer you the following:

- The Blue Veil tech is still in prototype phase, but you may have access to it during your attempted coup.

- There are some bombs with detonators left over from your success against the terraformer. Given your experience with them, the Freelanders requisition you 10 bombs and 4 detonators.

- A field agent of the Freelanders has offered his services. Charleston says his father faithfully served the former regime for many cycles and has leave to assist you. He says he can rally a small regiment. He, Darnit, and whatever number of Magfolk he can muster (he claims a total of 58), wish to meet you outside the city at a bay where Hrothulf first learned to clean a fish. They will await your arrival, but Darnit will Blue Veil you a 2-way radio with secure comms.

- If there is any concrete evidence of an alliance with Widmore, AND plans (prepared or engaged), the Freelanders would like to receive it and maybe then can be persuaded to assist the overthrow.

Lava's Quarrell

Idunn is delighted that Ego would reach out so soon and Elys is briefly heard in the background saying, "tell the Magic Man I've been practicing!!". They have just isolated the whereabouts of the Urca de Mirage and will attempt to recover the stolen cargo...um...children. As such, they cannot assist you. Barlow is eager to give Argenta (the Trident Lady) her comeuppance and tells Ego that certain stones are known to become very volatile when under life-threatening duress. However, Barlow was able to make contact with the Oceanic Ate. Capt Linus Vargas is willing to transport your party into Cleaveland. Barlow negotiated 27% rights to first-call trade opportunities under new management as he anticipated regaining control of the Mirage. Torq says it's a bad deal and suggests at least writing in some release clauses that would allow Hrothulf to nullify the contract if Barlow shows any kind of unethical behavior. You receive coordinates to the Oceanic Ate.

Servant Phoenix

- Will follow in secret and avail herself to the Branch as Fate would show. She is honored to have been given the freedom to retrieve her children. She offers you 5 shell remnants which look like shards of pottery made from turquoise-colored obsidian which seems to gleam like living fire. She uses her beak to crush the shards under great pressure and blinding heat to present each of you with a small amount of the healing powder. You acquire 5 doses, each of which can provide protection or restoration.

Protection (lasts 24 hours): Temporary HP equal to half your max HP (rounded up) and immunity to all diseases. +10 to saves against poisons and illnesses.

Restoration: Restores target to Max HP, removes a Curse, Charmed condition, or Petrified condition, removes any reduction to target's ability score.

We will continue the adventure as the Orthinopter begins descent onto the Oceanic Ate

Logistics Question:

Griffons are deployable on the surface of Magnus (and sometimes while subterranean), the question is how quickly they respond, how much can they do, and how long can they stay. They cannot traverse planes (like Ethereum or wherever the Bone Hallways were)