What are we going to solve?

On the one hand, football fans do not have a platform through which they can be involved in decision making, support or ownership of their team. The frustration among fans many times leads to riots & violence.

On the other hand, a lot of football clubs fail to meet their annual budget obligations and feel like their professional and financial efforts are not being appreciated.

The solution

What if we can help out both, fans and team managements, by allowing fans to vote on issues while raising money for those causes? Football fans will be able to decide on issues such as a player transfer or a coach recruitment, while backing that decision financially.

Team managements will be able to improve decision making, using crowd wisdom.

We believe that transparency in decision making will lead to enhanced crowd support and rising number of fans. The teams who will embrace the technology will improve the dialog between fans and team managements, as well as enhance the results of their teams and increase profits.
