Abstract

The abstract should be written in one paragraph without any reference or citation, and footnote; all specialized acronym should be explained. The abstract must be clear and concise and should be between 200-250 words. Times New Roman, font size 10, single spacing. Follow the following pattern: General statement about the importance of the topic, the gap in literature or discrepancies between theories and practices, the purpose of study, method, main findings, and conclusion.

Keywords: Keyword one; keyword two; keyword three; keyword four; keyword five – Times New Roman, 10pts, single spacing, separate each word with a semicolon (;)

INTRODUCTION

Describes the problems studied along with a literature review (the theory does not need to make its own subtitle, but integrates it with the introduction), ended by explaining the purpose and necessity of the study. The six important points that must be included in the introduction should give a clear description of the following aspects (1) a brief general background of the study; (2) state of the art (a brief literature review) of previous study to justify the novelty of the article made (should refer to journals in the last 10 years); (3) gap analysis or gap statement (originality) or novelty statement or uniquely difference to the research compared to the previous study or based on state of the art (in terms of the importance of the research and comparison of uniqueness of the previous research); (4) problems and / or hypotheses (if any); (5) problem-solving approach (if any); (6) expected results or research objectives. It is written in 12 point-Times New Roman. The introduction should be between 15-20% of the total manuscript. It is recommended to use 70% of sources from reputable journal articles.

METHODS

In the Method section, the author must describe and elaborate on the research design, research participants/sample, data collection technique, and data analysis. The Method section is between 10-15% of the article. If using a map or picture of the location, the coordinates must be clearly stated.

RESULT AND DISCUSSION

The Findings (for qualitative research)/Result (for quantitative research) and the Discussion section has to be 40-60% of the article. Describe the results of the study in accordance with the problems formulated / reviewed in the introduction. Results and discussion are separated. All types of the research must discuss the findings based on theory. Four important points that must be implied/explicit in the results and discussion section are: (1) (what/how) the data presented has been processed (not raw data), set out in tables or pictures (select one), and give an information that is easy to understand and pictures/tables are clearly referenced; (2) (why) in the discussion section there is a connection between the results obtained and the basic concepts and/or hypotheses; (3) (what else) there is a match or contradiction with the results of other people's research; and (4) write the implications of the results of both theoretical and implementation of the research.

Some of the citation styles accepted by JPK include:

1. According to Tarigan & Simbolon (2019),
2. According to Tarigan et al. (2019),
3. (Tarigan et al., 2019).
4. (Tarigan dan Simbolon, 2019).

All figures and tables included in the manuscript must be referred to in the writing. Images are typed center and not framed (border), while tables are made without gridlines or vertical lines (as an example).

Tabel 2. The total dominant catch of the step net during the study

CONCLUSION

The Conclusion section must restate the objective of the research and the main findings of the research. Some recommendation and/or implication can also be written in this section. The conclusion must answer the research objectives according to what is written in the introduction. The proportion is a maximum of 10%. Avoid conclusions in the form of points in the form of numbers or bullets. It is recommended in the form of simple sentences that conclude the results of the study.

REFERENCES

All cited sources in the text must be listed in the References section. It is highly recommended that the sources are no later than 5-10 years, especially for research articles. The journal employs the 6th APA style as the referencing style. It is recommended that the authors of the submitted manuscripts use reference management software to assist them (Mendeley, Zotero, EndNote, etc.).
