In these pictures, I can see two artists. In the first picture, we can see a young woman. She is a painter and she is working at the moment. She is looking for a brush or a colour to add to her work. In the second picture, we see another artist, but this one is a dancer. He is standing on his hand, doing a pose as a part of a routine

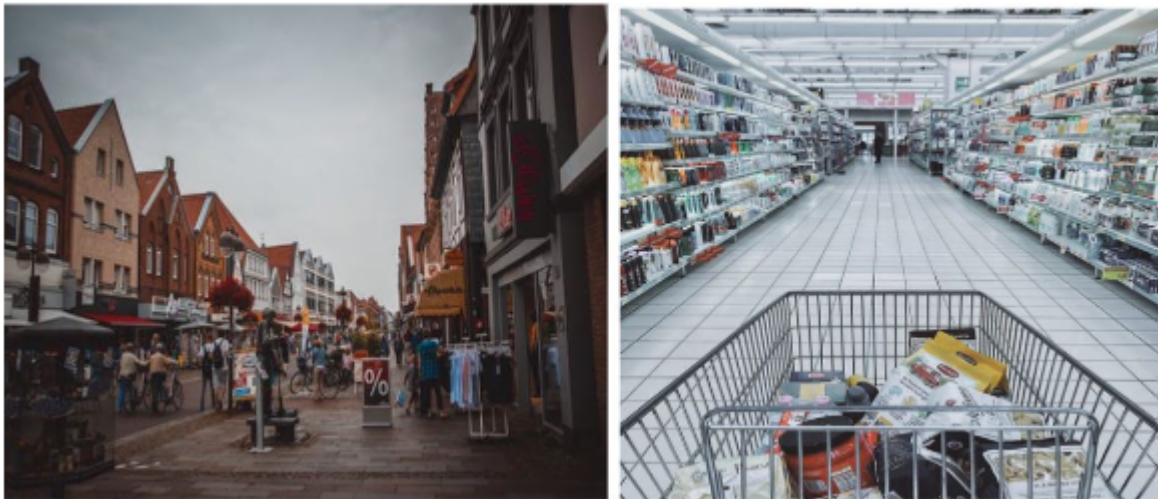

1. What kind of people do these activities?

I think creative people do these activities. In the first picture, we see a painter. She needs to think about what she wants to put on the canvas and then mix colours and styles. The dancer also needs to express himself with different styles but with using his body.

2. Which of these activities requires more talent? Why?

It's hard to say. I think maybe the dancer requires more talent because he has to train his body every day to move like that. I think painting takes less practice.

1. How do you think shopping has changed in the last 5 or 10 years?
2. Do you think shops, as we know them, will exist in 10 years?

The first picture shows a town center and by the looks of it, this is one of the main shopping streets. It's quite a small town and the streets are fairly quiet. There are umbrellas in the street and I think that there may be a market. In the second picture we can see the inside of a supermarket. In the foreground there is a shopping trolley and we are looking down the aisle of the supermarket from the perspective of the shopper. The trolley is almost full. I think that whoever is pushing the trolley is in the aisle buying beauty products.

1. How do you think shopping has changed in the last 5 or 10 years?

I would say that the biggest change in shopping has been the internet and online shopping, particularly the growth of Amazon and supermarket deliveries. As a consequence, the way we do our shopping is completely different. At first, supermarkets only sold food but started selling other things like clothes, now you can buy almost anything in a big supermarket. Then downloads started and people stopped buying CDs and DVDs. I remember buying my first MP3 on Amazon, and then you could buy more or less anything online. Many places do next day delivery and so you don't even have to wait for it.

2. Do you think shops, as we know them, will exist in 10 years?

I guess that the trend will continue and that more and more people will buy things online. If you at 10 years old today, then the internet will be the place you go to when you want something. People will probably continue those habits and many shops will become virtual shops. I think that shops, like we have today, will still exist though. Maybe they will be more specialist, or maybe people will go to them for a different experience. For example, many people still prefer paper books to eBooks and a lot of these people love spending time looking around a bookshop.

1. What would it be like to work on these two farms?
2. Which method of farming is better for the community?

Đáp án:

Tell me what you see in the two pictures

In the first picture I can see some people working in a field. They are farmers. They are cutting the plants by hand. They are wearing wide hats and thick clothing.
In the second picture there is a big machine cutting the plants. I think this is an example of modern day farming.

1. What would it be like to work on these two farms?

In this first farm it would be difficult to work there. The farmers are working by hand, so it would take a long time to complete the work. It would also be hard because the farmers are always bending over so they would get a lot of back pain.
In the second farm it would be easy to work there. The farmer uses a machine so it would be faster. It would also be good for making more money.

2. Which method of farming is better for the community?

I think the second method of farming is better for the community. It takes a short time, you don't need many employees and it is easier for their bodies.
