

Dr. Davis is a quadruple-board certified primary care internist and preventionist with an interest in working at the intersection of prevention, lifestyle medicine, public health and health equity. She is committed to helping her patients and her community live healthy and dignified lives through prevention and effective treatment of preventable chronic diseases. She is also an artist and seeks to use her creativity to develop innovative public health solutions to make prevention the priority and to make it popular.