

Last week feels like forever ago
And today never seems to end
The clock creeps on as I count
Every changing number it shows
Stretching every second into the Longest it could possibly become
And every moment is longer than
The one that came before it was