Title: Chicken Talk Around the World

Author: Carole Lexa Schaefer

Grade Levels: TK/K/1

Global Competence: Analyze cultural influences, connections, and contexts

[book summary]

Explore world languages and different cultures as you meet grandmothers' chickens in the United States, Mexico, Kenya, Japan, India, and France in this delightful book that celebrates cultural diversity.

After learning about what chickens are called in different cultures, pick another animal to research the name in other languages.

Bag Contents:

- book
- notebook
- pencil
- color pencils

Directions:

1. Read Chicken Talk Around the World by Carole Lexa Schaefer.
2. Pick another animal other than a chicken to research with your parent/guardian.
3. In your notebook, draw your animal.
4. Look up with your guardian what that animal is called in at least three other different countries and/or languages and write the different names around the picture of your animal.
5. Color your page in the notebook.

Extended Learning:

1. When you bring your book bag back to class, you will share what you learned about your animal with our class. Tell the class what your animal is called in the different countries/cultures you picked.
