

The Enchanted Forest campaign

Character

Charlin the Mundane

Just like the rest of his village, Charlin comes from a long line of magic users. Unlike the rest of his village, Charlin's magic did not manifest itself on his 18th birthday.

Feeling cheated after dedicating his early life to learning all he could about the mysterious force he was supposed to inherit, Charlin is desperate to find something that gives his life meaning.

Whether that is an answer for (and solution to) why he can't use magic, or just finding something else of value to do, it seems clear to Charlin that he has to do something.

It is rare that one from his village ventures forth into the world, but Charlin has chosen this path, and left his life of seclusion in the village.
