Parkway Central High School

where THEATRE is a tradition

Dear Theatre Enthusiast,

Parkway Central High School Theatre Department is proud to present The Diviners by Jim Leonard, Jr. November 1st, 2nd and 3rd, 2012 at 7:30 pm.

Set in the In the fictional town of Zion, Indiana during the Great Depression, a widowed farmer, Ferris, is raising his son Buddy, whose brain was damaged at age 4 during a near drowning, in which his mother died trying to save him. The childlike and uncontrollable Buddy has a sweet spirit but is terrified of water, though ironically he has developed an uncanny ability to find water for his drought-besieged farm community. When a disillusioned preacher, C.C. Showers, who left his practice, comes to the farm seeking employment and food, a unique bond develops between the troubled but gifted Buddy and a man who represents salvation to the beleaguered townspeople. C.C. devotes himself to helping Buddy, and his efforts precipitate a startling chain of events.

The PCH Theatre Department invites you to The Diviners on November 1st, 2nd, and 3rd, 2012. The doors open at 7:00 pm, and the curtain rises at 7:30 pm. Enclosed you will find a poster to display.
