

Dear Users and Content Owners,

We would like to inform you that all the study resources provided on TheExamHacker platform have been collected and organized from various websites available on the internet. These resources are freely accessible and have been provided as they are found, without any modifications or watermarks.

Our aim is to make educational content readily available to students at no additional cost. Therefore, no extra charges are being imposed on these resources.

However, if any company or content owner has any concerns regarding the use of their content, we kindly request that you do not report our website. Instead, please contact us directly at care.ancientcracker@gmail.com .

We are committed to addressing any issues promptly and will either resolve the matter to your satisfaction or remove the concerned content from our platform.

Thank you for your understanding and cooperation.

Short Summary:

ExamHackerBoards aims to provide free educational content to help students. Some of the materials available on our platform may contain information similar to content from other educational websites. We do not claim ownership of such materials, nor do we distribute pirated copies of any premium resources. All the content we provide is freely available on other platforms and is repurposed solely to enhance accessibility for students.

If any organization or company has concerns regarding the use of their content, please reach out to us at care.ancientcracker@gmail.com, and we will either remove the material or work towards a resolution that satisfies all parties involved.

Best regards,

TheExamHacker Team