

Please add projects below (link and short description) doc below is for [this issue on github]
(contributors to this list: @dbild, julia vallera @jvallera, @PiReel, @acabunoc, nathalie rayter)

Improve participation & collaboration on Mozilla Clubs Discourse

“Work with community members of the Mozilla Learning Discourse forum to improve participation and collaboration on Mozilla Clubs Discourse so that we can get feedback from others thereby improving openness & innovation.”

Open Student Book

“The Open Student Book project is a guide to introduce Open Projects and Open Source to students of all faculties in Italian universities. It's important to show the potential of working in an open community and to demonstrate why doing so is important, not just for the individual but for humanity as a whole.”

Club Guide: Best Practices for cross-club collaboration

“This Mozilla Club guide was created by Mozilla Clubs and Mozilla Club Captain Steven Van Sant (Mozilla Club Omaha) If you have an idea for a guide and/or would like to help author one of your own please let us know. “Many more here: <https://learning.mozilla.org/en-US/clubs/running>

Open Leadership Camp

MIT Media Lab and Mozilla (March 21-24, 2017)

HIPC III: Understanding Openness (Hive Chicago Project) (GDrive folder)

HIPC III will create a Community of Practice for network members and affiliates around Openness as it pertains to both the Internet and learning programs. It will (1) improve the Hive Chicago community's understanding of the open web and thereby (2) will set learning providers up for successful implementation of open sharing of learning opportunities on the HIPC II infrastructure.

Ada Lovelace Day Curriculum Design Workshop

intensive collaborative curriculum development workshop to guide participants to create their own materials inspired by Ada Lovelace Day and the contributions of women and girls to STEM. repo:

<https://github.com/mozillascience/curriculum-design-workshop>

Teaching Web Literacy in the Open: <http://mozilla.github.io/learning-networks/clubs/teaching-web-literacy-open/>

Open Leadership 101: free online course - short version of full training

(<http://mozilla.teachable.com/p/open-leadership-101>)

Mozilla Web literacy framework activities

Series of activities that align with mozilla's web literacy framework