Willy the whale went to the shop to buy a white whistle, a wheel, and a whip.

The shopkeeper was Kevin the cat, who had black whiskers. "What would you like to buy?" he whispered quietly.

"I want a white whistle, a wheel, and a whip," said Willy.

"We don't have white whistles," said Kevin. "We have a black whistle."

"No, it has to be white," answered Willy.

"Why white?" asked Kevin. "A black whistle will still sound the same."

Willy the Whale whacked Kevin on the head with his stick. "No, it has to be white," said Willy.

"I can get one for you," said Kevin.

"When?" asked Willy.

"Tomorrow," said Kevin.

"Where?" asked Willy.

"By the river," said Kevin.

"Which river?" asked Willy.

"The big one," said Kevin.

"OK," said Willy.
