

Design Your Own Quilt

Reflection

We ask that you now look at your quilt that you designed. Imagine if we took your quilt from you, and put it in a museum. As its creators, since we developed these worksheets and asked you to fill them in, we are going to put our names on the plaque next to the quilt. Given that you contributed labor to this quilt, do you think it is fair to say that we are the creators and not you? How is this similar to the enslaved people who were not recognized for their contributions to the textile industry in the 1800s?
