Story Title: Leave the Sea

Pairings, Characters: Shen Wei/Zhao Yunlan

Rating: Mature | M

Warnings: No Warnings apply

Summary: Shen Wei was dead, and now he isn't. Zhao Yunlan should be blissfully happy. There are just a few tiny problems: For one, Ye Zun came back along with Shen Wei. For another, the Hallows have sealed sealed Dixing and Haixing off from each other - and Zhao Yunlan and Shen Wei are stuck in Haixing, while most of the SID is still in Dixing, along with Ye Zun. Then there's Zhang Shi, who is still keeping secrets. Oh, and that serum Zhao Yunlan took in a last-ditch effort to defeat Ye Zun? It's now wreaking havoc in his body.

Meanwhile, Shen Wei resolves to find a way to reach Dixing ... but if he does, will he have to leave Zhao Yunlan behind?

First of a two-part series - this part is set in Haixing; the second will be set in Dixing.

Story Title: The Queensberry Tree

Pairings, Characters: Susan Pevensie/Sansa Stark, Arya Stark, Edmund Pevensie, Lucy Pevensie, OCs

Rating: Teen | T

Warnings: Chooses not to use Warnings

Summary: [spoilers warning lol] The Queensberry Tree is one long happily ever after for Sansa Stark, with heavy focus on worldbuilding and family. Four years after the events of the GoT finale, and winter is predicted to end within the year; she is fulfilled and strong in her role as queen, but it's lonely at the top, and she's worried about how she'll get an heir without sacrificing her body and her power to some royal man that she doesn't trust. Along comes Arya, fresh back from worldwide travels, and she brings with her some new Narnian friends. Turns out that due to a mix of magic and Aslan, Susan Pevensie is making her a proposal of marriage, and as part of Narnian ritual, if she accepts the proposal, she must go and live in Narnia for one month while Susan lives in the North for one month. Sansa decides to take the risk. End of chapter one. Chapter two follows Sansa getting to know her betrothed better by learning about her family and her country and her history. There's a lot of family times and worldbuilding fun; she gets some new ideas about fashion, becomes friends with Peter and Edmund, and helps broker new diplomatic relations with Narnian werewolves. She also realizes that Susan is not merely interested in her for religious or magical reasons, but because Susan is genuinely concerned about the possibility of a Calormene incursion and is willing to sacrifice herself to marriage in order to give the Narnians somewhere to fall back on if necessary. This makes Susan far more understandable and admirable in Sansa's eyes, and she decides to go through with the marriage. Then there's the wedding ceremony, a bit of romance. They get to know each other, and Susan makes it clear that she won't press Sansa for sex if Sansa isn't comfortable; Sansa expresses that she isn't ready yet but she hopes to be, one day. The second chapter ends with the execution of a criminal; Sansa sees Susan gently directing someone to take away the criminal's young son so he won't have to witness it, and Sansa comes to the realization that while she had always envisioned the ideal spouse as someone very hard and strong, with Sansa's relentless focus on coming winter and potentially coming war/political unrest, but Susan is the actual ideal spouse because her gentleness and emotional intelligence are complementary to Sansa's skills and instincts, and very good for a country that's healing from a destructive war and long winter. Chapter Three is like a long epilogue, a massively self-indulgent sketch of Sansa and Susan's lives together, and it particularly focuses, near the end, on how their three children (the result of magically induced pregnancies) grow and develop and thrive in the world. The story ends with the note that it is every good mother's wish for their children to live better lives than they were able to, and that Catelyn's great sorrow was the breaking up of her family and witnessing the death of some of her children, whereas Sansa was outlived by all her children (and most of her grandchildren), and that Catelyn would be proud of her. Top to bottom, very soft, very worldbuildy, very self-indulgent, definitely leaning more towards the Narnia books than the GoT series in overall tone.

Story Title: Setebos

Pairings, Characters: Emily Kaldwin/The Outsider

Rating: Explicit | E

Warnings: Graphic Violence

Summary: Agent Emily Kaldwin's mentor, Billie Lurk, vanishes after a visit to an isolated New England town. Facing uncooperative locals and odd goings-on, Emily and her partner try to solve the mystery of her disappearance, unaware they're facing the same fate.

(Also, tentacles.)

Extended elevator pitch: modern day AU where the Cult of the Outsider is present in a small town, having kidnapped Billie Lurk who figured out what was going on, kind, while there for unrelated drug trafficking reasons. Emily and Alexi Mayhew investigate, stumble in, fight the cult, make out with the outsider, and then leave. Flavors of Lovecraft pastiche, not really a prime example of a casefic.

~~Dublin Murder Squad Series — Tana French~~

~~#27~~

~~Story Title: Kill The Rider~~

~~Pairings, Characters: Antoinette Conway, Sam O'Neill, Cassie Maddox, Stephen Moran, OCs~~

~~Rating: Mature | M~~

~~Warnings: Chooses not to use Warnings, there's too much to warn for given that this is based on a dark murder mystery\ canon. that said, specific warning for past domestic abuse (emotional and physical, although not sexual) playing a large role in the backstory of a case~~

~~Summary: [spoilers warning lol] If you don't know the canon, here's a quick summary of that before I get into the fic: The Secret Place follows the story of a ambitious, clever young detective from Gold Cases (Stephen Moran) trying to solve a cold case with Detective Antoinette Conway from the Murder Squad, who Stephen initially dislikes and views her only as a stepping stone to a spot on the Murder squad. Over the course of the book he realizes that they click well and he likes her. At the end of the book, despite having learned that the Murder squad is in the process of harassing and hounding her out of her job, he decides to take her up on her offer of becoming her detective partner because he's willing to put his career/reputation in jeopardy in order to work with her, he respects and likes her that much.~~

~~The Trespasser picks up about a year later (I think) and follows Antoinette as she tries to work a case that at first looks like a typical domestic dispute gone awry. She's ostracized and harassed at work (she's the only woman there, the only person of color there, she's super tough, and she has a very intensely I Don't Take Shit, Be Competent or Perish attitude). She's considering quitting. Over the course of the book, she finally~~

~~allows herself a little vulnerability in depending on Steve. She solves the case partly because of her outsider status which allows her to correctly view another murder detective as a suspect, and the novel ends with her looking forward to working in the murder squad with Steve for the rest of her life. It's probably the happiest ending anyone has gotten in a Tana French book, and I adore it, and in my fic I blow it to smithereens like a watermelon hit by a bazooka. Very sorry. Can't help it. Gotta.~~

~~My fic takes place roughly 8 or 9 years after the Trespasser, and it begins with Antoinette and her new partner Detective Laura Barry being assigned an attempted murder case which is related to a suicide case that she investigated earlier that year with Detective Sam O'Neill. The case involves a family with a long history of abusive behavior across three generations, and it hopefully has some parallels and echoes in what's going on with Antoinette, although I can't explain the case details without writing like 2k words. Basically, during the first half of the fic you see that Antoinette has changed a lot and is behaving self-destructively, and you slowly learn why. About a year before the fic started, there was a gas leak explosion, which gave her a mild concussion and severely wounded Steve. He nearly died several times in hospital, and after being released from hospital, returned several times; as a result, he has PTSD and Antoinette also shows trauma symptoms (insomnia, poor memory). Antoinette has always had to struggle and fight in life, but she's never come across an enemy she couldn't beat with persistence and intelligence. She can't out-think or outlast or outfight the wounds and the trauma that have made Steve retire and her avoidant coping & self-destructive behavior has left her with serious regrets for the first time in her life. Basically, she sees who she used to be in Laura, much in the way that ex-detective Cassie Maddox sees how she used to be in Antoinette, and this summary is getting long asf so let's cut to the chase: after a lot of shit goes down, Antoinette confronts her trauma and does open up to Cassie and Steve, a little, and manages to find the killer. She ends up with a bit of leverage which she uses to pair up with Cassie, passing Laura to Sam, everybody's pretty happy, and the fic ends with her giving Steve a gift for good luck on the first day of his classes (an implicit reaffirmation of their friendship and show of support for him in embarking on a new life outside the squad). This is legit a terrible summary and I'm so sorry but I've already tried rewriting it 3 times. The baseline is: sometimes horrific shit happens that you can't fight or reverse; you gotta fucking accept it and learn to build a new life for yourself, or you drown. That's it.~~

~~Dublin Murders (TV)~~

#28

Story Title: ~~Cassie Maddox & The Three Sinners~~

Pairings, Characters: ~~Frank Mackey/Cassie Maddox, Vincent Johnstone, Rob Reilly~~

Rating: ~~Explicit | E~~

Warnings: ~~Chooses not to use Warnings~~

Summary: ~~[spoilers warning lol] Chances are you don't know the canon, and that's okay! The overall vibe of the show is that of a dark psychological mystery, and as befits a show based on Tana French books, at its very core is the relationship between two damaged detectives, Rob Reilly and Cassie Maddox. Before the time period of the show beginning, Cassie went undercover as a student and low-level drug dealer in order to get to the drug dealer Vincent Johnstone; Frank Mackey was Cassie's handler. This mostly canon-compliant prequel is focused on Cassie's undercover work with Frank, during which time she canonically had sex with Johnstone and it's heavily implied that she may have also had sex with Frank. My fic is, at its heart, a story about Cassie growing up and finding what she wants in the world, through the lens of her relationship with Frank and her undercover mission. Basically, she feels uneasy about Frank for a while, in a way that goes beyond first time undercover nerves, and she feels drawn to him, too; she's not been fully seen and understood by anybody in a very long time, perhaps ever, and that vulnerability, especially when paired with Frank's greater experience, skill, and general air of mystery, is frightening. She tries to put it down to mere sexual chemistry, and they do end up having an affair, but ultimately she finds that there's no future with Frank; he's a little more callous than she is, when it comes to undercover work, and more importantly, she'll never get anywhere with him because he's locked up some parts of himself forever (as evidenced by the way he promises to tell her about one of his scars and then lies about it in a way she can detect). The whole experience teaches her how much she is capable of, as a detective with skills and as a human being with a heart, and it primes her for her friendship/relationship with Rob Reilly, with whom she's an equal and with whom she sees a future. Unlike Frank, when she tries to get to know him, Rob opens up, and when she presses in more, he doesn't shut her out; he says he'll tell her all about it one day, and she believes him. (The audience knows this to be true, because as of the beginning of the series, canonically Cassie knows everything about Rob, including his big secret.) After an encounter with a drug-using witness nearly kills Rob and Cassie talks the man down, Frank gets wind of it and thinks this might be a good time to try and lure Cassie back to Undercover; talking down a drug user is literally one of the things that she did while undercover that proved her skill for the first time. But Frank finds that she's found her place and is prepared to defend Rob more fiercely than ever; he stops trying to get her back and congratulates her, albeit a tiny bit wistfully, on having found her place both on the Murder squad and~~

~~with Rob. The fic ends with Rob asking Cassie what her talk with Frank was about, and Cassie echoing Rob's earlier words by promising to tell him all about it one day. Alternative ending is Cassie thinking to herself that Rob's similar to Frank in ways that she likes and different from Frank in ways that are even better, and that at least this time she knows how not to fuck it up; she's not going to make the mistake of sleeping with him, at least. She's learned that much. (Audience of course knows that she does sleep with Rob midway thru the season, and that this will set off a disastrous chain of events that eventually leads to them parting ways forever.) Cannot decide if that's too pat or if it's good actually.~~

Story Title: Forget Me Not

Pairings, Characters: Zack Fair/Cloud Strife

Rating: Explicit | E

Warnings: No Warnings apply, Tags I'd use for this fic include - Modern AU, Traumatic Events, Hospital, Mental Health Issues, PTSD, Suicidal Ideation, Body Dysphoria, Grief and Loss, Recovery, Support, Falling In Love, Flowers

Summary: Cloud is a delivery driver. For personal reasons, he hates the military. He gets tasked with delivering flowers to Zack Fair, a soldier stuck in hospital. Zack, is very proud and struggles with showing any chink in his armor. His world and body are both shattered and now he lives with his own perceived weakness, out in the open for everyone to see. The story is about Cloud and Zack falling in love, and learning to get over their personal hang-ups through the love and care they receive and show one another.

Currently, this story is 105,000 words long and I still have the last chapter (Chapter 14) to write.

Other prominent characters present in the story are - Aerith, Tifa, Sephiroth, and Kunsel.

I have a playlist for this whole fic -

Story Title: In|Servitude

Pairings, Characters: Shikamaru/Neji, Kakashi/Naruto

Rating: Explicit | E

Warnings: Graphic Violence, Major Character Death, Non-con/Rape, politics and discourse

Summary: Shikamaru investigates, Neji endures, Naruto burgeons, Kakashi repents. No one is born into this cursed realm without pain, yet we all suffer alone.

In order to find out the truth behind his sensei Asuma's supposed suicide, Shikamaru, the young heir of the Nara clan, will turn over every brick and shingle of the capital, even if it means risking his family's reputation and safety by making an enemy of the bakufu and possibly the entire shogunate, even if it means exacerbating the already antagonistic rivalry between Naruto, adopted son and heir of Daimyo Tsunade and Sasuke, the youngest son of the house of shinpan Daimyo Uchiha, even if it means repeatedly clashing with Hyuuga Neji, the young and dogmatic bushi, who looks down upon Shikamaru for his humble origins and detests him for his reckless disregard for the courts and the customs alike.

But some stones should be left unturned, for they conceal deep secrets, secrets regarding Naruto's true lineage, and the mysterious power that lies deep within Hyuuga compound. Secrets that are little more than rumours of a terrible demon awoken decades ago capable of destroying all that walks on the earth, secrets that Naruto's sensei Kakashi has sacrificed almost everything to keep hidden and out of sight from the bakufu and the shogun.

As his investigations continue, and more deaths of those who know the secrets start occurring, Shikamaru finds himself at the vortex of a turbulent era that draws himself, his family and allies and rivals alike into an inevitable war that might just alter the very fabric of society.

Minor supernatural elements and a lot of discourse and angst.

Story Title: The Dark God

Pairings, Characters: Alan Viridon & Pete Burke

Rating: Teen | T

Warnings: A bit of mutant body horror

Summary: On their quest for technology that could send them back to their own time, stranded astronauts Viridon and Burke journey across the North American continent, which is now known as the Forbidden Zone - a post-apocalyptic wasteland that the apes don't dare to enter. The Zone is far from deserted, though, as the men discover when they are attacked by giant monitor lizards. The 'sand dragons' aren't the only mutants hiding in the badlands - human appearances may literally only go skin-deep...

A/N: For artists not familiar with the show, I'm happy to answer any questions, and can also provide screen caps for visual reference.

~~Story Title: If These Scars Could Speak~~

~~Pairings, Characters: Malcolm Bright, Dani Powell, Gil Arroyo, JT Tarmel, Edrisa Tanaka, Jessica Whitly, Ainsley Whitly Martin Whitly~~

~~Rating: Mature | M~~

~~Warnings: Graphic Violence, debating if there will be non-con touching or not~~

~~Summary: As if their current case wasn't gruesome enough, someone is digging in Malcolm's past, judging him on it. Is it a fatal judgement or do they want something from him? Takes place post finale with Malcolm mentally dealing with what happened with both Eve and Ainsley. They're facing a case where someone is eviscerating women mimicking the style of another killer incarcerated in Claremont with Martin. While there trying to see if he's somehow involved, Malcolm and the team are swept up by another unbalanced person who idolizes Martin and is out to tear Malcolm down. With all these pressures, Malcolm is coming undone. There is some mild Dani/Malcolm but I wouldn't go so far to call it a pairing. There is a past OG/Malcolm pairing.~~

Implied Raphael/OC, Lily Chen/Maia Roberts

Rating: Explicit | E

Warnings: 1. Vampirism and all associated with it [and bonding + angst], 2 explicit smut, 3. A whole lot of angst.

Summary: 1. Things between Simon and Raphael are still a little shaky after their bonding so when Raphael is invited to Vegas for a Vampire conference he is sure that it's the perfect opportunity for the two of them to regain stable ground away from any distractions among the bureaucracy. But things get complicated when Simon finds himself the centre of attention of the Chicago Clan leader despite his and Raphael's bonding being common knowledge. But will he be able to keep his and Raphael's bond alive when betrayal seems like it's at every turn, destined to break them, or will he find himself lulled away into the life he could have always had? 2. Simon & Raphael have just got together but with the physical affection that Raphael craves minimal between them, he's taken it upon himself to get rid of some of the pent up affection himself. But when Simon finds out will Raphael finally get what he has been craving whether in the way he anticipated or otherwise? 3. Since Simon was kicked out the Clan he's been trying desperately to make it up to Raphael but the Clan leader won't let him near especially with a new fledgling on his radar, but will he finally get the chance to admit all to the elder and come back to the Dumort or will Raphael's broken heart reign supreme?

Story Title: Of Greek Mountains and Men

Pairings, Characters: Aleksandr Kallus/ Garazeb Orrelios

Rating: Mature | M

Warnings: Graphic Violence

Summary: Aleksandr Kallus, skilled Rebel pilot, has crash-landed on a primitive planet. His X-wing damaged, he finds himself reliant on three self-proclaimed Greek demigods for help.

There's the snarky Cassian, son of Poseidon, who has an eerie mastery over water.

There's the mysterious Alethea, daughter and servant of Athena, who wrestles with her memories as much as she does Kallus.

But most intriguingly, there's Zeb, the handsome son of Apollo who takes an immediate liking to Kallus, in more ways than one.

Together, the four must face bandits, famine, prejudice, the ire of the gods, and many other dangers as they travel to find the only person capable of fixing Kallus's X-wing.

The problem is, thanks to Zeb, Kallus isn't so sure he wants to go back to the stars anymore. Maybe his place is there, walking with the demigods instead.

~~Rating: Explicit | E~~

~~Warnings: Canon Typical Violence,~~

~~Summary: [The End Canon Divergent] Instead of Dean being pushed by Zachariah into the future to see the result of him saying no to Michael, Castiel from 2014 is pushed to the past. Leaving Dean with the possibility of saving the future as well as finding himself in a confusing situation between a fallen angel and an angel and the decision of which he wants more...let alone if he can even get the courage to be with one or the other....all while worrying about how to contact Sam to prevent the apocalypse.~~

#74

~~Story Title: The Red Thread~~

~~Pairings, Characters: Sam Winchester/Eileen Leahy~~

~~Dean Winchester, Bobby Singer, Original Background Characters~~

~~Rating: Teen | T~~

~~Warnings: Graphic Violence (canon typical)~~

~~Summary: Eileen Leahy is a teenager at an American high school when she meets Sam Winchester for the first time. Smart, handsome, and kind, she falls head over heels before his father pulls him right back out of school.~~

~~Four years later, a tip from Bobby Singer sends Sam and his brother out to investigate strange deaths on a college campus in Montana. Only a year out from the death of his first girlfriend Jessica, Sam struggles to face campus life again. An unexpected meeting with a half forgotten high school crush stops him in his tracks.~~

~~Eileen had been on this hunt for a year and finally feels like she's getting somewhere when Sam Winchester shows back up in her life, just in time for her best friend to be taken by the monster that has been feeding on college kids. To add to the shock, he's also in town to hunt the same monster.~~

~~Frustration on both sides turns to respect, and they find a tenuous version of the friendship they briefly shared as teenagers. If they can manage to survive the hunt, they'll have to work through their realizations that they aren't the only ones out there hunting, and that maybe that isn't such a bad thing.~~

~~Pairings, Characters: Castiel/Sam Winchester (endgame), Sam Winchester/AU!Jimmy Novak, AU!Claire Novak/AU!Jack Kline~~

~~Rating: Teen | T~~

~~Warnings: No Warnings apply~~

~~Summary: Sam and Castiel go to help Jimmy Novak from the other world when they learn that he's dying.~~

~~This different world is one where Sam didn't die at Gold Oak, so Dean never made the demon deal. The battle between Michael and Lucifer at Stull Cemetery never took place. And Castiel never officially met the brothers, remaining in Heaven for the most part.~~

~~Jimmy's predicament is the cause of demons retaliating for Sam's visit months ago. After all, Sam's presence led to two Archangels coming down to Earth. These demons strongly prefer the status quo: angels stay up in Heaven while demons face little threat from angels on Earth.~~

~~Sam and Castiel work to save Jimmy's life. Their time in the other reality takes an unexpected turn after Castiel sacrifices himself. While Castiel saves Jimmy from the brink of death, Sam can't bear losing Castiel for good.~~

~~Sam also must sort out his conflicting feelings for the other Jimmy. This is after they became intimate during Sam's last visit.~~

~~Sam learns of a surefire plan to save Castiel. It involves the Jimmy of his world, the one whose soul now resides in Heaven. Can Sam figure out a way to convince Jimmy's soul to help Castiel? Especially since Jimmy isn't exactly Castiel's biggest fan.~~

~~Pairings, Characters: Stiles Stilinski/Derek Hale~~

~~Rating: Teen | T~~

~~Warnings: No Warnings apply~~

~~Summary: Sterek modern royalty AU.~~

~~Stiles always considered himself to be without a past. Other than a scar on his temple and dreams of fire, he knows nothing about his life before he came to live with the McCalls. Now, after a drunken birthday celebration with his brother Scott and his best friend Danny, a stupid prank they pulled garners the attention of the royal palace. Although, instead of the teen felons Stiles assumes they are looking for, they believe he is Prince Mieczeslaw Stilinski, who had disappeared eight years ago the night a fire at the royal palace killed Queen Claudia.~~

~~When Stiles is brought to the royal palace, Derek has no clue what to make of the whole fiasco. Queen Talia Hale has ruled Beacon for the last eight years, and does this kid expect to usurp his sister Laura's claim to the throne? Is it all a ploy for media attention? Or could there be a more sinister explanation behind the fire eight years ago and why Stiles has only just now been found?~~
