Industrial Construction Supply

Reliable Supply for Critical Energy & Processing Facilities

At Hartmann Building Specialties, we supply the materials and expertise required for heavy industrial construction, with a strong presence along the Gulf Coast where some of the nation's most critical energy and processing facilities are built. This region plays a key role in supporting oil and gas production, petrochemical processing, and LNG export operations, making the success of these projects essential to both regional and national infrastructure.

From liquified natural gas (LNG) facilities and oil refineries to chemical plants and greenfield processing sites, our team supports some of the most complex and high-demand job sites in the industry. These projects require precise coordination, strict adherence to specifications, and reliable material supply to keep work progressing without delays. Our experience in these environments allows us to understand the challenges contractors face and respond with solutions that align with real jobsite conditions.

We provide the concrete accessories, fabricated rebar, forming systems, and technical services that industrial contractors depend on to execute their work safely and efficiently. Whether supporting large equipment foundations, containment structures, or structural concrete scopes, our team helps ensure materials are delivered in step with construction schedules and project requirements.

Since our inception, Hartmann Building Specialties has been committed to serving the industrial construction industry with consistency and reliability. Backed by decades of experience and strong vendor relationships, we continue to support contractors across the Gulf Coast with the products and service needed to keep critical projects moving forward.

Infrastructure

Supporting the Projects Communities Depend On

Delays, miscommunication, and material failures can derail even the most well-planned infrastructure project. Whether you're working on water and wastewater systems, drainage improvements, or marine structures like flood walls and loading docks, you need a supplier who understands the stakes and keeps work moving.

At Hartmann Building Specialties, we work alongside contractors to support critical infrastructure with the materials, coordination, and service required to stay on schedule. From wastewater treatment plants and lift stations to stormwater systems and coastal construction, our team brings decades of experience and a practical understanding of how these projects come together in the field.

As demand continues to grow, we also support the construction of data centers and other mission-critical facilities that require speed, precision, and reliable material flow. When timing is tight and the scope is demanding, Hartmann Building Specialties delivers the support needed to keep your project moving forward.

Building Supply Company for EPC Solutions

Procurement Support Built Around Accuracy & Speed

Hartmann Building Specialties, Ltd. supports EPC firms on complex, high-demand projects by delivering reliable, accurate, and streamlined procurement solutions. These projects often involve tight timelines, multiple stakeholders, and highly specific material requirements, leaving little room for delays or miscommunication. Our team understands the level of coordination required and works closely with contractors to ensure materials are aligned with both project specifications and construction schedules.

As a true one-stop shop, we supply a wide range of construction and industrial materials needed to support full-site concrete scopes. From reinforcement and forming products to specialty accessories and jobsite essentials, we help reduce the need to manage multiple vendors. This simplifies procurement, improves communication, and allows project teams to stay focused on execution rather than sourcing.

In addition to our stocked inventory, we specialize in sourcing non-stock and special-order items to meet exact project requirements. EPC projects often call for unique materials that are not readily available, and our established vendor relationships allow us to locate and deliver those items efficiently. By handling both standard and specialized procurement, we help eliminate gaps in supply that can slow down progress.

Our responsive service and procurement expertise are built around supporting critical path schedules. We work to ensure materials are delivered when and where they are needed, helping teams maintain momentum across each phase of construction. By reducing supply chain delays and improving coordination, Hartmann Building Specialties provides the support EPC firms need to keep projects moving forward with confidence.

Municipal

Materials & Service That Meet Municipal Standards

Municipal construction projects come with no shortage of challenges. From tight budgets and strict compliance requirements to aggressive schedules and complex design elements, city and county officials need reliable partners who understand the stakes.

Whether you're building a fire station, expanding a school district, or paving miles of pedestrian trails, delays and subpar materials aren’t an option.

At Hartmann Building Specialties, we provide the materials, experience, and support that municipalities depend on to deliver public infrastructure with confidence. Our team is known for quick response times, deep product knowledge, and jobsite-ready solutions that keep your project on track from first pour to final inspection.

About Hartmann Building Specialties

Ed and Ginny Hartmann were at a college football game in Dallas – Texas vs. OU. They met with several vendors that day and, with a simple handshake, created Hartmann Building Specialties, Ltd.

All those decades ago, our business address was just a driveway in Sour Lake, TX, that stored 55-gallon drums of curing compound and form release that were hand-loaded in a single pickup.

Almost half a century later, and after years of field experience, in-house estimating and detailing, and strong vendor relationships with names from Hilti to DeWalt, what started as a small company now brings big value to construction projects across Texas and Louisiana.
