Presidents Message

Hello Colleagues,

Hopefully this is the last Presidents letter I write to you with only online events to announce. Please keep an eye out for emailed invitations to our Spring Speaker Presentations, links to the 2022 UW-Madison Cytotechnology Program Final Projects, as well as an online Business and Annual meeting. At our virtual Annual meeting the current board will present any ongoing business and then we will be considering any volunteers who would like to join the board or help us plan an in-person meeting for 2022/2023. It would be great to see all of you at any of these events!

Currently all of our wonderful officers have moved well beyond what has previously considered a full term, even so; most would be happy to stay at their post or shuffle around to allow new board members to join. In essence, all seats are open to interested individuals and our sitting board members would be happy to show new officers the ropes. I cannot thank our current board and our membership enough for keeping this society not only afloat, but in a good position to come roaring back as it becomes reasonable to do so. Now is the perfect time to engage with our society and help us plan future (in-person, hands-on, lunch provided) events, but I cannot stress enough how much this group really needs active members and board members to give us feedback and suggest topics and venues.

We all have a stake in this rewarding profession. This vocation has been evolving since its inception, but is currently entering an especially dynamic period in that evolution. This Society and our national societies are critically important to providing an avenue for important discourse regarding our professional futures, but more importantly it should function to empower our membership to take action to change that future.

Kind Regards,
Joshua Faulkes SCT(ASCP), President, WSC
