

Image Downloader Pro does not collect, store, or transmit any personal data. All image scanning happens locally in your browser. No browsing history, image data, or usage information is ever sent to any server.

The extension requires the following permissions solely to function: activeTab (to scan the current page for images), downloads (to save images to your device), and scripting (to detect images on the page). These permissions are not used for tracking or data collection of any kind.

Downloaded images go directly from the webpage to your device. We have no access to or visibility into this process.
