Those are the good impacts of guest posting that you may get but on the other hand, there is also the bad impact of guest posts which might harm your sites like spam links and schemes. When you are deciding to do guest posts, that means you are also open to other links to your sites and some of them might be bad for you. To avoid those kinds of issues, you have to be really careful in choosing the sites to link with your own site. Just select the sites that have good metrics and make sure that it's not a spammy links farm. Using SEO tools is the best way to solve the problems.

To be honest, guest posts can have a good impact on your site if you can do it correctly by finding relevant websites and providing good content. But, it can't be doubted that guest posts might harm your sites if you are not aware of the quality of sites that you want to be linked to. Just make sure to identify the site's metrics first using SEO tools before you are deciding to do a guest post on that site.
