

This project was made with different gemometric shapes and colors that represent my emotions and feelings and I then crumpled it up to show that you are not defined by your emotions.