

Juan's favorite Bruno Mars album Doo-Wops & Hooligans.

By Keila

My friend Juan's favorite Bruno Mars album is "Doo-wops & Hooligans." Bruno Mars released his debut studio album on October 4th, 2010 named "Doo-Wops & Hooligans" with his production team and his writing.

Peter Gene Hernandez, Born in October 8, 1985, popularly known as Bruno Mars, is an American record producer and singer-songwriter. He is known for his amazing songs and astonishing stage performances. He performs in a wide range of musical styles, including funk, pop, R&B, soul, reggae, disco, and rock.

“The song that reflects me the most is “Runaway Baby” because it is kind of similar to me and I really like the song.”
- Juan

When I asked Juan about his favorite Bruno Mars album he said, “My favorite album is “Doo-Wops & Hooligans” because I relate to most of the songs.” When I asked him about how he feels about the album Doo-Wops & Hooligans he said, “I feel very emotional when I listen to the songs from the album.” He likes the album so much that he gets emotional while listening to the songs.

Most of us have a favorite part or lyric in our favorite song. When I asked him about his favorite song in the album and what his favorite part and lyric is, he said, “My favorite song is “When I Was Your Man.” My favorite part or lyrics are “Cause my heart breaks a little when I hear your name” Juan said. Some people also have their least favorite song in some albums. When I asked Juan he said “My least favorite is “Count on Me” because you can’t really count on anyone these days.”

Knowing all of this, Juan’s favorite Bruno Mars album is called “Doo-Wops & Hooligans” that was released on October 4th, 2010. You should try and listen to the wonderful album. Have fun listening to it!
