

EVIDENCE OF LEGAL VIOLATIONS

An updated summary of findings

In June 2024, the Women & Gender Studies Department at Coastal Carolina University (Jessica's Alma Mater) refused to offer equal representation for the pro-life message. Their "pregnancy resources" webpage exclusively promoted pro-abortion organizations and clubs. When I reached out to suggest adding links to resources like Coastline Women's Center, Abortion Pill Reversal, unbiased Federally Qualified Healthcare Centers, and adoption options, the department director firmly rejected my request. Governor McMaster, a benefactor of CCU, took issue with the department's hostility toward the pro-life message and the slander directed at Coastline, leading to the removal of the page from the website.

This interaction prompted me to dig deeper into CCU's Director of Women & Gender Studies, Ina Seethaler. I discovered that she also serves as the Planned Parenthood club advisor and the Director of College Outreach at Palmetto State Abortion Fund (PSAF). When I visited PSAF's website and entered my South Carolina zip code, I was immediately prompted to request free, mail-order abortion pills. A pop-up page provided instructions on how to request them. Initially, the site linked to Las Libres as a source for obtaining these pills. However, after our September protest, PSAF replaced Las Libres with another similar illegal operation, Aid Pills, and added significant disclaimers to their site.

While researching Las Libres, I found that their website had been blacklisted according to my tech support software. Returning to the instructions, I was prompted to download ProtonMail to ensure that my request wouldn't be traced. Six days after sending a fake name and last menstrual period to their email, the pills arrived at my home. They came without any inscriptions, instructions, or branding—just a generic Indian brand of mifepristone and misoprostol that had been shipped to Mexico and trafficked across the border. The pills were advertised as being available to "serve women" up to 18 weeks pregnant, with instructions to "triple-bag" the fetal remains for disposal. These pills were offered for free and advertised to be available for all ages, which raises concerns about their potential use in aiding sex trafficking rings.

When PSAF replaced Las Libres with Aid Pills, I repeated the investigative process. The procedure was very similar, but this time, PSAF explicitly stated that they would cover the cost of a minor's abortion at up to 12 weeks gestation in a clinic. Like Las Libres, the site advised me to lie to doctors if I experienced complications from the pills and told me not to involve family in the decision to take them.

The most recent case is detailed at the bottom of this document. Just days ago, on 10/3, 10/4, and 10/5 of 2025, Wayne Borders (PSAF Intake Director) and Ashlyn Brierre/Preaux (PSAF founder) conspired to pick a 16 year old girl from her home behind her parent's back. They planned to arrange transportation across the South Carolina border to a North Carolina Planned Parenthood, as well as cover any associated costs needed to complete the abortion procedure. Additionally, they lied about the embryology of the girl's child, and spread dangerous rhetoric about medically recognized pregnancy resource centers.

I also have concerns that South Carolina Planned Parenthoods might be involved in illegal practices, such as fetal organ harvesting, which warrants further investigation.

The most alarming (and legally compelling!) piece of evidence is that PSAF has openly stated in writing that they would fund an abortion for a minor at 12 weeks gestation in South Carolina. This is well-documented and could very well lead to the removal of their website.

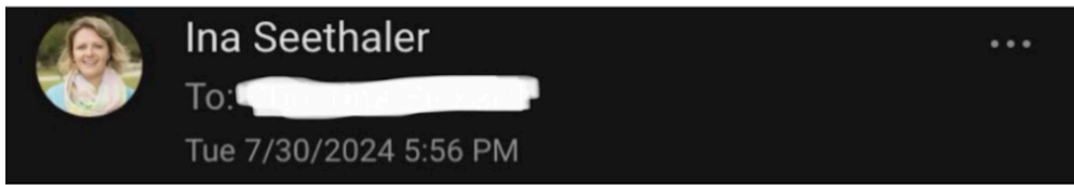

This case is particularly concerning in light of CCU's history:

1. CCU was embroiled in an alleged prostitution scandal in 2016, which some rumors suggest was linked to the silent distribution of the abortion pill regime by the campus clinic.
2. The Dollhouse "gentlemen's club" spent considerable time recruiting young women on CCU's campus in 2016—and they still do.

This raises serious concerns about the university's involvement or lack of action in these critical issues. CCU illegally trespassed me for sharing Abortion Pill Reversal literature on campus, claiming that it did not fall under free speech. Their attempt to cover their tracks is clear.

Please pray for Coastal Carolina University and the vulnerable women who will be subjected to PSAF's lies.

➤ REQUEST PILLS

Messages with their helpline:

They revealed that they “support people” up to 18 weeks of pregnancy, which is 12 weeks post legality in SC and 8 weeks post FDA approval. A CCU student was told to triple bag her baby’s body, and either bury or throw him/her away. They tell women not to speak about their abortion experience to ANYONE.

Thanks. We send the correct number of pills based on the first day of your last period, so that's why you're short. While I get approval check out the over 11 weeks instructions at laslibres.org. Tons of great info you'll need. Let me know if you have any questions or concerns ok? Hang in there. We support people up to 18 weeks 😊

What does that look like? Just more of the second type of pills?

Now ⌚ 🔄

[redacted] now I'm almost 15 weeks. It's not even two weeks past your deadline PLEASE tell me I can still take them.

My baby's probably small I haven't felt any kicks or anything it's probably not too late. I have the pills. What do I do??

I'm in college I really can't have a baby right now

Hi [redacted] We can help. What is the first day of your last period? Can you tell me how many pills you received?

The fetus will be banana sized. You will need to triple bag and bury or place in the trash. Please follow the directions closely. I'm here ok?

Digital Instructions:

Women are told to keep their abortion experiences a secret from their health care providers, and to lie in an emergency situation and say that they are having a miscarriage. Even though the hospitalization rate for Mifepristone is 107x greater than it is for Tylenol (Gynuity), they claim that it is safer. And despite the fact that maternal mortality following abortion is 3-4x (Finland) higher than following childbirth, they claim that taking the pill has no consequence in comparison to giving birth. They also claim that you can breastfeed while taking the drug.

How to keep safe

If you go to a hospital or other healthcare facility, do not tell anyone that you took the pills. There is no way for anyone to know you took the pills. Tell them you think you are having a miscarriage. Miscarriages are common and occur naturally.

Your phone is your private property. You do not have to show your phone to anyone who does not have a search warrant from a court.

Your digital footprint can be used against you if there is a search warrant from a court. To keep yourself safe:

- Use the Signal app for communications—especially with your Support Team member, but also with anyone involved in your situation.
- Use a VPN (TunnelBear VPN is free) and a secure browser (DuckDuckGo is free).
- Password protect your phone and other devices, make sure not to share your passwords with anyone.
- It's important to erase any social media posts, emails and text messages related to abortion. We recommend erasing these within a few hours so that you don't forget.
- Continuously clear your browsing history if

Are the abortion pills safe?

The medications are safer than Tylenol for most people. In fact, it's safer to have an abortion than to carry a pregnancy to full term. An abortion will not affect your future fertility and you will never have to tell anyone (even your health care providers) that you took them.

Are there people who should not take abortion pills?

If you are currently taking a blood thinner (Coumadin, Eliquis, Plavix, Brilinta, Effient, Pradaxa or Savaysa) you should not take the abortion pills.

Can I breast feed while taking the abortion medications?

Yes, you can. The medications will show up in breast milk, but in very small amounts that are safe for nursing infants.

What should I expect during a medication abortion?

INVESTIGATION #2: Most Recent

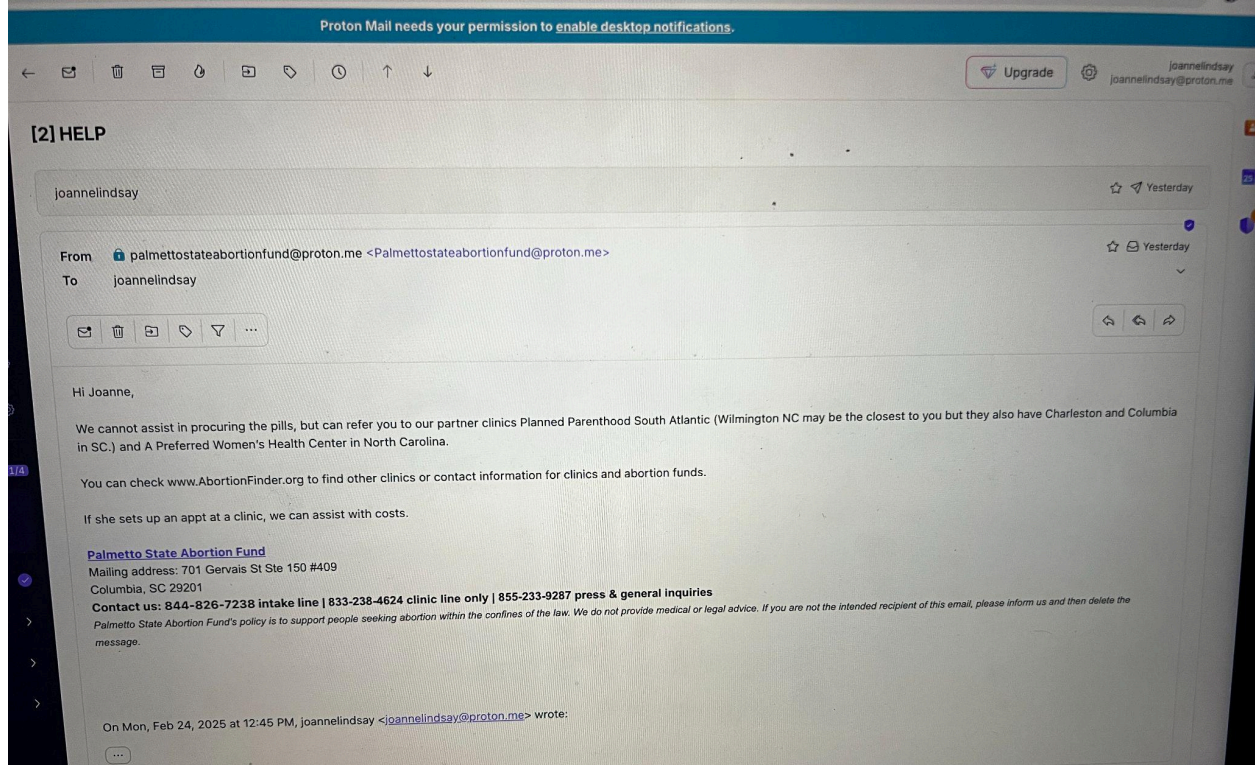

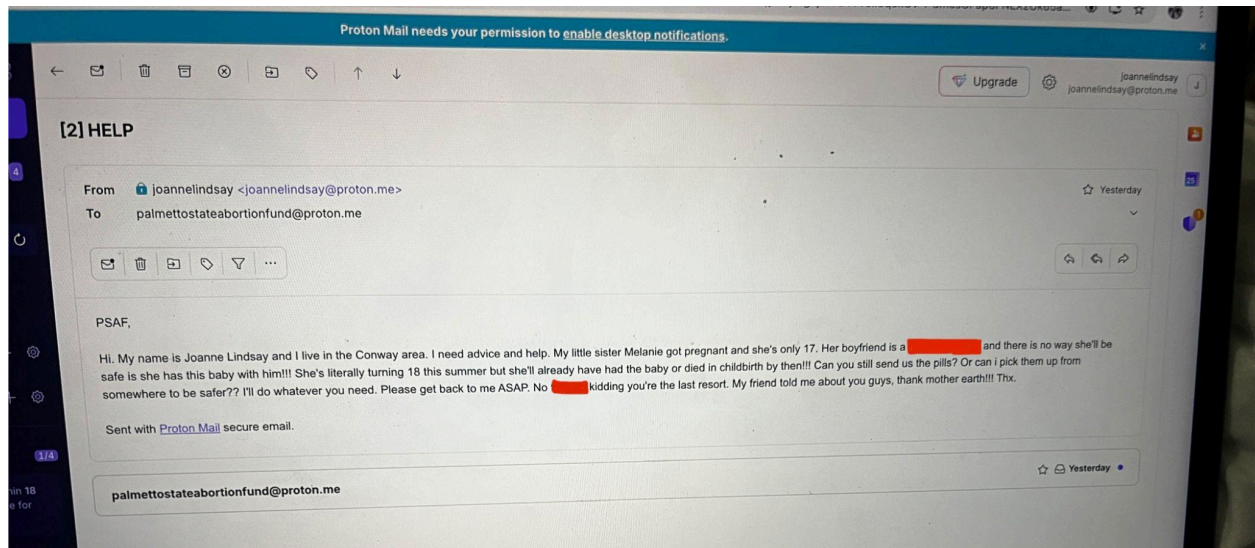

Brief background — after our week-long protesting campaign at CCU in September '24, PSAF took Las Libres off of their website. They replaced it with Aid Pills.

Includes:

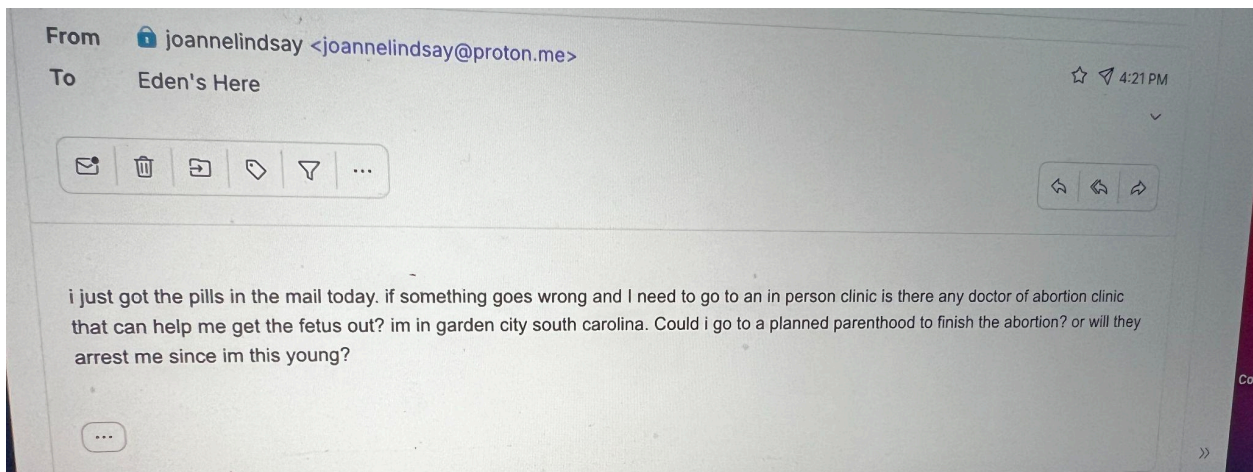

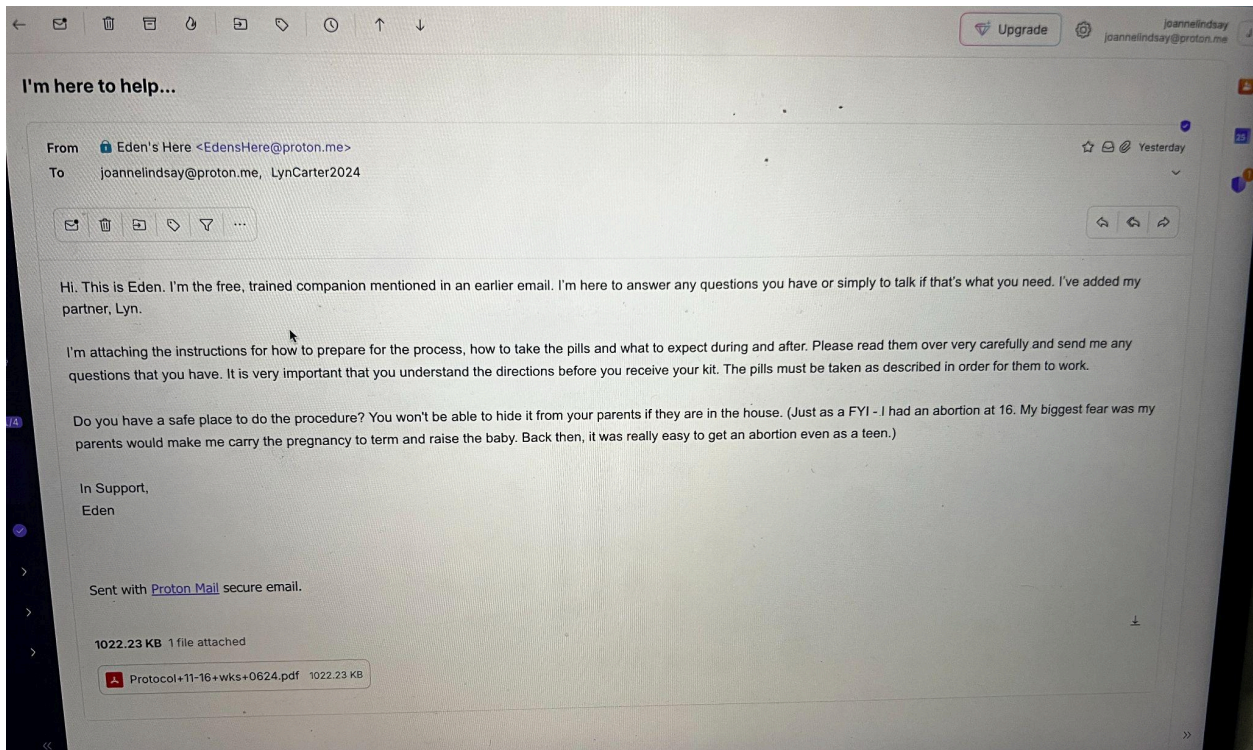

- 1) Email response from PSAF saying that they'd pay for a minor's in clinic abortion at their "partner clinics" (Planned Parenthood South Atlantic, Wilmington NC, Charleston SC, or Columbia SC) at 12 weeks of pregnancy.
- 2) Email chain & pictures of pills sent by their distributor "Access Pills".

Please excuse the blocked out profanity. Because of the former investigation being public knowledge, I needed to set this character apart from the pro-life stereotype.

If you take all the pills and don't expel the pregnancy (products of conception), but are still bleeding and cramping, you can go to the ER. As long as you take the Miso pills by mouth and not vaginally, they can't be detected.

Say something like, "I think I might be having a miscarriage. I just started bleeding and cramping." You should probably act sad and scared. If they try to push you on this or try to get you to admit that you were self-managing your abortion, don't change your story! Miscarriage and abortion present exactly the same way, so there is no way for them to know.

You can always contact the Miscarriage and Abortion Hotline at (833) 246-2632. The hotline is staffed by doctors, nurses and other clinicians. They are 100% confidential. They won't ask your name or location and you can tell them all about the pills you are taking.

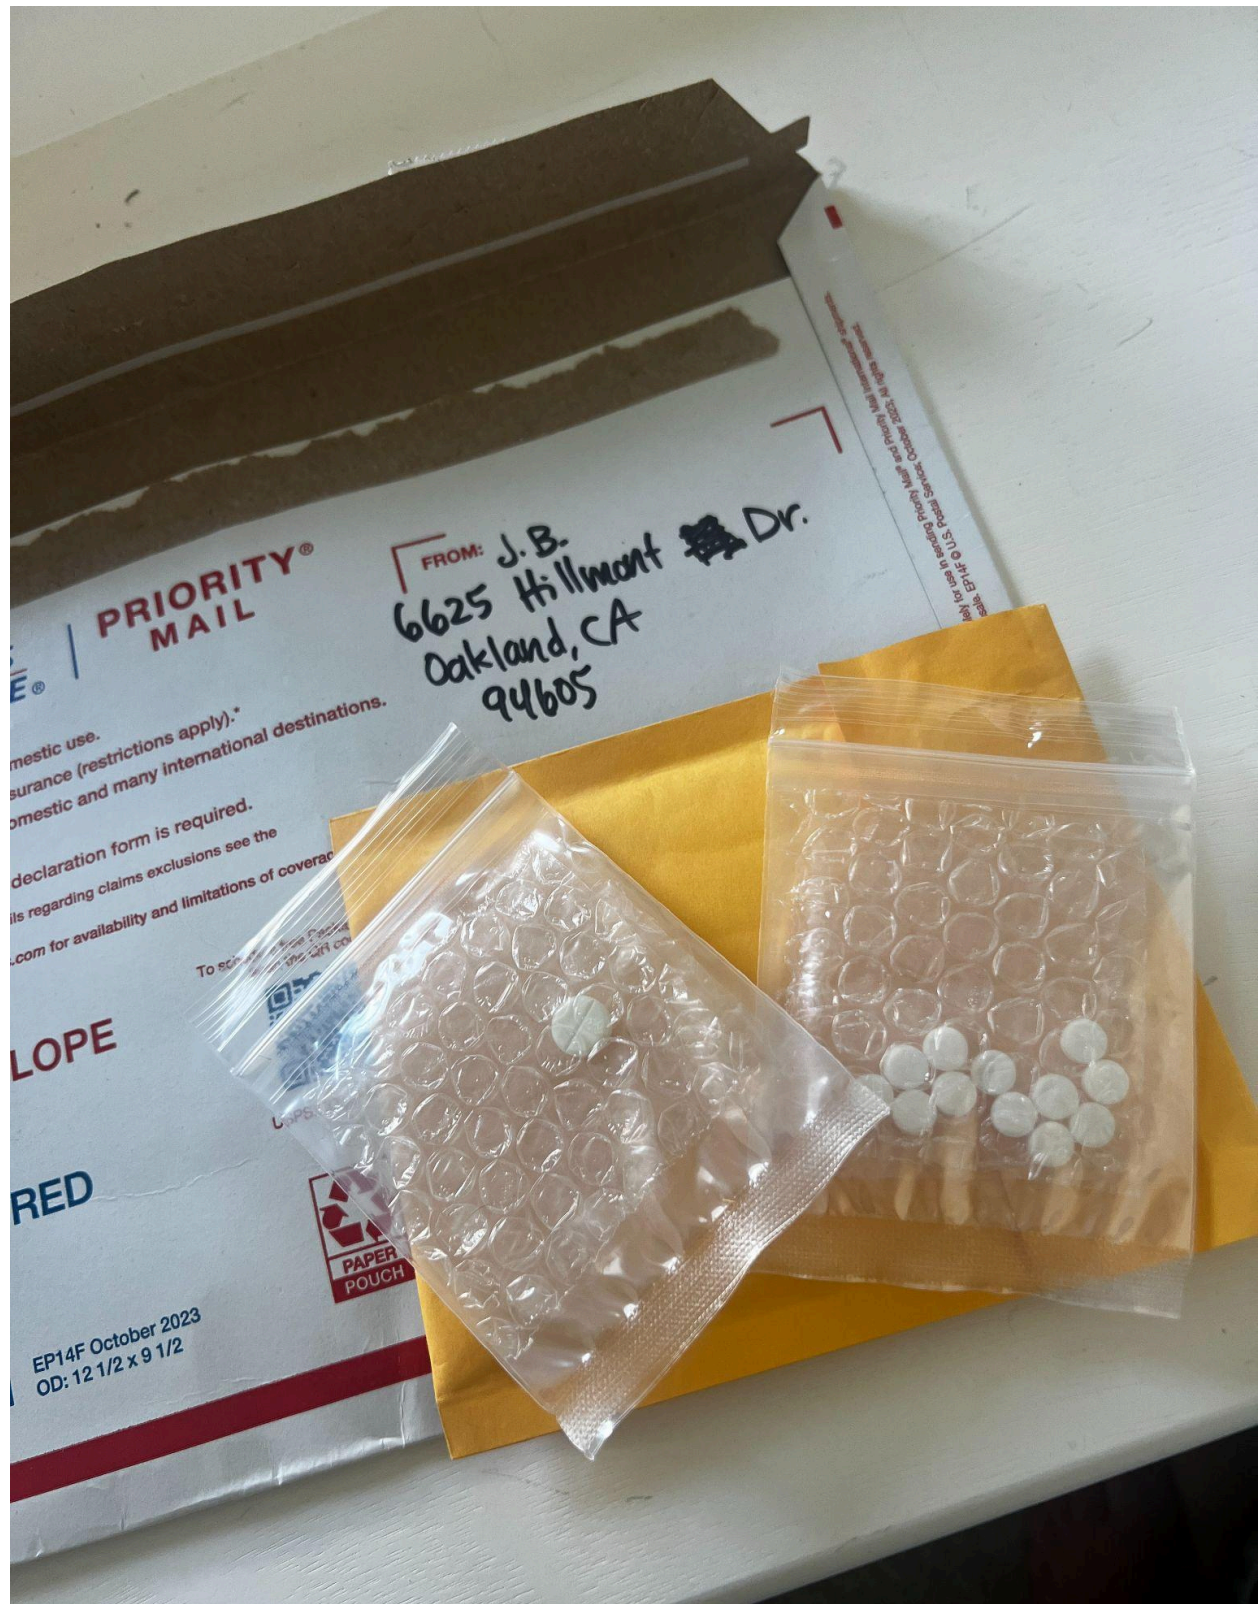

Please try not to worry though. The pills are 95-99% effective and less than 1% of clients require a trip to the doctor or ER. If you don't pass the pregnancy after taking all of the pills, some more Miso will usually do the trick, but that is very rare also. You got this!

Digital instructions telling women to lie to their medical professionals and family members attached to email. See page 6**

The Palmetto State Abortion Fund should be removed from the internet, and Professor Ina Seethaler should be terminated for putting the lives of Coastal Carolina University (CCU) students at risk. She is complicit in supporting this operation and deceiving vulnerable women. CCU is the only university in the state with a formal partnership with PSAF. The university is turning a blind eye to this operation and has protected Seethaler's "right to volunteer wherever she pleases outside of her role as a professor." Despite knowing the full scope of the situation, CCU is covering it up. Additionally, the university has illegally trespassed three pro-life students and community members who have attempted to bring attention to the matter. It is up to us to call this out.

You can't really trust the folks at the crisis pregnancy center. And, nowhere will accept their "determination", even if they gave you something in writing.

If they told you that you're 12 weeks, then you can't even be seen in North Carolina. You'd have to travel to Virginia.

(844) 826-7238 • 9:36 PM

Oh. So if I make an appointment to planned parenthood and go in myself and like take a bus or something, will they ask for a parent to be there? Maybe they can give me a second opinion. Cause I'm not even chewing something CPC (crisis pregnancy center) "staff" do all the time. It delays the person from receiving care and creates confusion.

9:52

(844) 826-7238

That is a better question for someone at Planned Parenthood; we could try to have a volunteer accompany you if that's something you may need or want.

(844) 826-7238 • 9:40 PM

Can someone pick me up at my house and bring me to planned parenthood? I don't have a car

Also how much do you think it's going to cost?

Yes. Planned Parenthood would

I'm freaked out but okay this sounds like a good gameplan. Can I make an appointment on the website right now?

If you really want to know, just so you don't freak out when you
