

The Houdini Box

This book was such a fun read! The Houdini Box is an historical fiction about a boy named Victor who wanted to be a magician just like Harry Houdini. He tried and tried to lock himself in things and break out with no luck. He needed the secrets of Houdini himself. As luck would have it, Victor ran into Houdini at the train station and asked for his secrets. Houdini told the boy he would write him a letter and he could come see Houdini and he would share his secrets. Harry Houdini passed away on Halloween, the exact day Victor came to visit. Houdini's wife gave Victor a locked box with the initials E.W. Were these the secrets of Harry Houdini, or was this all a mean joke to play on this aspiring magician? You'll have to read the book to find out. Also, read the information at the back of the book about Harry Houdini. It adds even more to this captivating story.
