Good Things that Happen After Midnight

Whoever said, “Nothing good ever happens after midnight,” probably never had a day of fun in their life, or they had so much fun that they nearly died from it. Either way, that old saying is a lie. Midnight is when the fun begins. It’s a time for romance and lovers, and the adventurous who want to see a world different than the 9 to 5 rat race everyone else sees.

Midnight is when all the regular folks head home and leave the night to the people it belongs to. It isn’t all about partying at the club to you puke either. After midnight is where you find the romantic and quiet moments where the most in-depth conversations happen and hearts touch.

It's after midnight when the noise of regular life finally shuts off, and in many ways, it feels like the real world can come out and breathe again. This is what midnight lovers live for, and this is what they like to do.

All Night Diners

Not the chains mind you. While Waffle House might be a good after clubbing destination for the college crowd, the mom and pop diner or donut shop is where the real fun is. And the food is usually better. These places are where you meet the most interesting people, and everyone always seems to talk more after midnight.

A lady might spill the beans about all the UFO's she saw while living out west, or an old truck driver could tell you about almost getting captured by the Vietcong in Nam. The odds are good that the two of you will have an experience you can talk about for years, and have a romantic dinner at a unique place that the two of you will always remember.

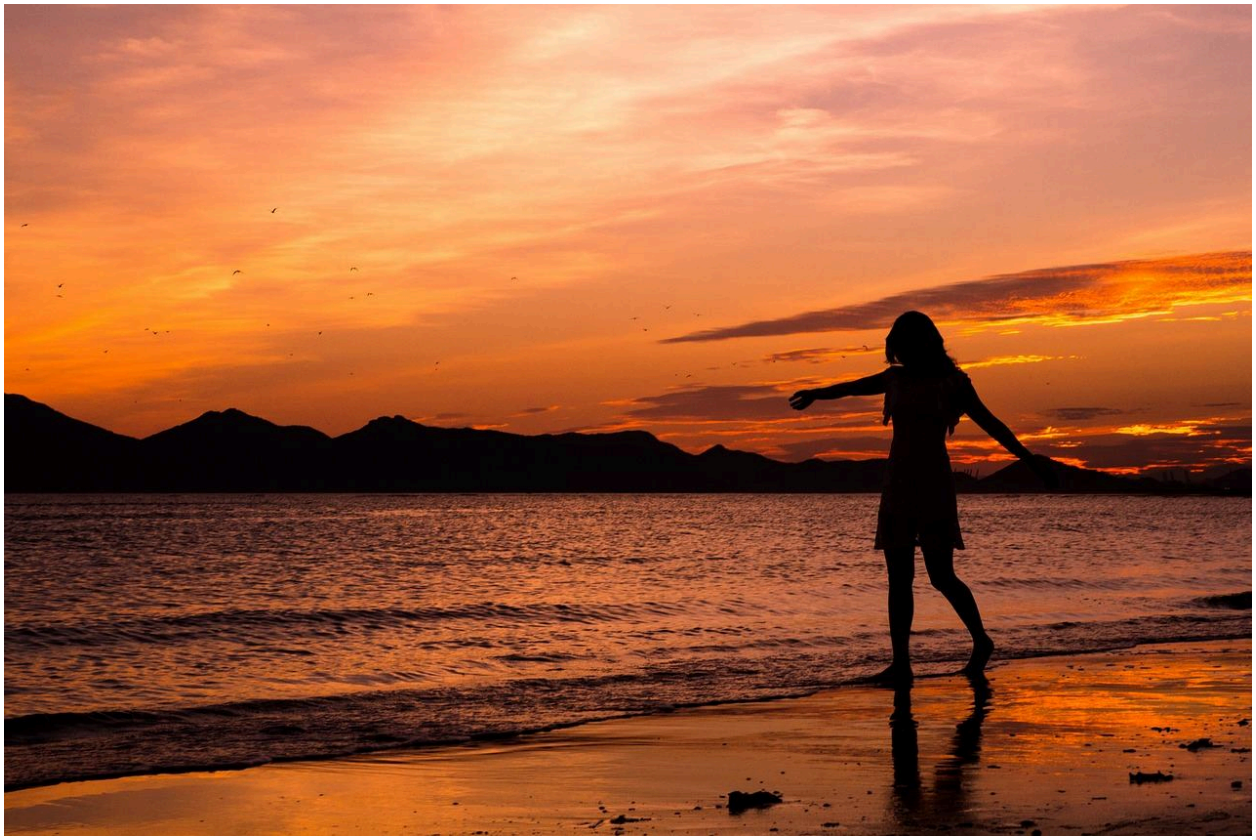

A Quiet Night In

Some of the best nights in a couple's relationship is when they share an evening cup of coffee followed by wine and Netflix. Or maybe just a night of good conversation that moves from the kitchen to the couch, and then to the bedroom. Sometimes playing a round of cards or other game can be romantic. Either way, it's going to be a night to remember.

A Nighttime Drive

Not a road trip per say, but a little drive to somewhere different. It could be a scenic overlook off a highway or maybe a natural area for some dark sky stargazing. No matter the destination, the drive there is an excellent time to connect with your partner. And if no one is around, turn it into a makeout session. Just remember to drive safe.

A Long Walk

It could be a walk around the block, a stroll out in a large field, or even the ever-popular walk on a moonlit beach. Even a midnight stroll around the neighborhood while all the neighbors sleep is good. Either way, taking each step hand in hand is a great way to make sure the night ends somewhere great.

A Late Movie

A date is always made better with a movie. You could hit one of those all-night bargain theaters that show movies past their regular release run, or you catch the midnight premiere of the next blockbuster. The best thing is that it doesn't matter whether or not the movie was good or bad. It will be a shared experience where you can talk about what you liked or make fun of all the terrible parts. And if it's that bad, you can always makeout instead.

A Casual Tryst

Romance is great and all, but there's nothing wrong with a little booty call while you're in between serious relationships. Sometimes a date during more normal hours can go nowhere and can leave you finding yourself with nothing to do even though there’s plenty of nighttime left for fun. Call up that one person you know who is always down with a casual fling, and have fun. It doesn’t matter if you’re young or old, especially when there are so many good places to save on viagra.

A Midnight Picnic

Pack a late dinner, maybe a bottle of wine if where you’re going is in walking distance, and head out for a picnic. It’s a romantic way to do something mundane with an exciting twist. That late at night, you can picnic almost anywhere. You could go on a rooftop, a public park, or even tailgate it in an empty parking lot.

After Hours

Find a place that is packed with people during the day, and marvel at the emptiness of it at midnight. It can be a mystical experience of sorts, and sometimes a bit disconcerting – but in a good way. Doing this is a great way to connect with your partner and feel like you are the only two people in the world.